Health Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration Thursday proposed health insurance regulations that would require doctors, hospitals and nursing homes to maintain fee schedules for public inspection.

The proposal was contained in a package of amendments sent to Congress that were designed to tie-in with President Nixon's health insurance legislation.

The American Medical Association earlier announced it would oppose the fee-posting plan.

Other provisions would require states to regulate health insurance companies, protect consumers against failing carriers and force insurers to disclose the percentage of premiums allocated for claims.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Elliot L. Richardson cancelled without explanation a mid-morning news conference to announce the proposals. Two assistant secretaries, Stephen Kurzban and Laurence Lynn, were assigned the task in the afternoon.

The powerful American Medical Association served advance notice it would fight the fee posting plan. The AMA, with 205,000 members, contends a similar requirement under the President's wage-price controls will have no effect on health care costs which last year rose at a rate nearly double the cost of living increase.

Few if any patients have asked to see a physician's fee schedule although notices of availability are posted in waiting rooms, an AMA spokesman said.

In appealing the Price Commission rule, which also limited physicians to an average 2.5 per cent fee increase, the AMA said: "It is simply not practicable for a physician to arrive at a schedule of prices for each and everyone of the numerous services he may be called upon to render."

The administration amendments would require annual independent audits of health insurance carriers and self-insured employers, not required now in any state. The federal government would be authorized to step in if states failed to act on regulations.

The Nixon health insurance plan would require all employers to provide basic protection for most employees, financed through payments by both parties. The government would pay the insurance cost for low-income families with children not covered by employer plans.

HEW estimates the Nixon plan would raise federal taxes $2.6 billion and raise health care costs $1.8 billion above the $105.4 billion expected to be spent in fiscal 1974 without any government insurance reform.

Paris Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnamese Communist delegates to the Paris peace talks accused the United States Thursday of planning "new military adventures and poured scorn on the new allied peace plan.

The United States then announced an indefinite postponement of the next round of talks because of a pro-Communist antiwar meeting scheduled for this weekend in Versailles.

The United States feels it will trouble the neutral atmosphere of the peace talks. Referring to the Versailles delegates as "a horde of Communist-controlled agitators," U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter told the Communists at the 144th session of the peace talks: "Our side does not wish to agree to a meeting next week....We will notify you when we have determined how soon a meeting will be desirable."

Meanwhile, he added, the allied side will "assess the atmosphere" created by the conference of peace groups and Communist organizations, including Vietnamese Communist delegations.

"We consider...the Versailles affair to be incompatible with the purpose of these talks, which is to arrive at a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam problem," Porter told the Communists.

The North Vietnamese delegate, Nguyen Minh Vy, and the Viet Cong's Nguyen Van Tien discussed key points of the allied peace plan, first presented in secret to the North Vietnam by Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser.

The eight-point plan calls for total withdrawal of U.S. forces within six months of agreement on the plan, prisoner release and a new presidential election in South Vietnam with President Nguyen Van Thieu resigning a month before.

Value Added Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials gave an advisory commission Thursday favorable assessments of the value added tax. But they said President Nixon has not decided to propose this form of sales tax to help finance education.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, which was asked by Nixon to look into the possibility and make recommendations, held its first session on the subject with Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, as the main witness.

The proposal is for a federal value added tax that would yield about $18 billion annually. Commission chairman Robert E. Merriam estimated the commission would take from six months to a year to complete its studies and draw up its recommendations. Such a timetable would rule out any final action by Congress at this session on a new tax.

The value added tax is levied at each stage of the production and sales of goods and services, with credit for the taxes paid at previous stages. The ultimate consumer finally pays the whole tax.

A rate of about 3 per cent would be required for an $18 billion yield.

About $5 billion of the tax receipts would be used to finance income tax credits and rebates, designed to reduce the impact of the value added tax on lower-income persons.

The remaining sum, about $13 billion, would be distributed to the states for support of education through the high school level, possibly on the basis of $1 for each $2 of state expenditure.

The states would have to eliminate local property taxes for educational purposes in order to qualify for the federal payment. The states could impose statewide taxes on non-residential property for educational purposes.

Holds Surprise News Conference

Nixon Answers Questions

OMAHA—Hands are up to applaud Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz as he steps to the speakers podium here Thursday to address the annual meeting of the National Livestock Feeders Association. Butz said "people like Harry Bridges do not have much regard for the public interest" when their unions tie up the country's economy such as the recent West Coast dock strike has.

Butz Says Transport Strikes Hurt Farmer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz said Thursday that transportation strikes have done great harm to American agriculture.

"We must put a stop to this insanity," in remarks prepared for delivery at the Central Livestock Association convention. "I doubt if anybody can even begin to size up the harm that transportation strikes have done and are continuing to do to American Agriculture."

Butz said that time and again shipments of commodities to markets have been blocked or threatened with paralysis as a result of labor disputes in which farmers have no part and no vote.

He referred to the just-settled West Coast longshoremen's walkout, which started last summer, then renewed again in January after an 80-day cooling off period ordered by the federal government under the Taft-Hartley law.

He also criticized strikes by Atlantic and Gulf Coast dock workers and elevator employees in Chicago—"just when farmers were harvesting the greatest crop of wheat, feed grain and soybeans in history."

The speech by President Nixon's new agriculture secretary and his remarks at an earlier news conference had the ring of a crusader. He titled his talk, "Battles that Farmers Must Fight." And he emphasized to newsmen that he is doing his best to make sure that Midwest farm belt states vote for President Nixon this fall.

Butz said that new legislation such as the President has proposed to forestall crippling strikes in all key transportation areas was one of the battles needed to be waged in behalf of farmers.

"The way things stand now, we operate on a crisis-to-crisis basis whenever a major labor dispute hits the nation," he said.

He listed these other campaigns on behalf of farmers: "Fair prices for farm products, which he said have lagged badly behind other items in the cost of living.

"Better farm income to match that of the city worker. —More freedom for farmers to manage their own business without too many government controls.

Butz said he had heard some "flak," chiefly in what he called the liberal eastern press about rising beef prices. "But," he added, "I say isn't it about time that beef prices got up to the level of 20 years ago? Compared with 20 years ago, average hourly wages in the U.S. have more than doubled."

He also ticked off figures indicating wage earners have 3.4 times more money than 20 years; service and industry workers, 4.9 times more; total money for government wages 4.3 times higher; dividends up 3 times, while business and professional income doubled.

And yet, said Butz, net farm income is only a bare 3 per cent higher in those 20 years.

Butz said that whereas consumers used to spend 23 per cent of their disposable income on food in 1952, today they spend only 15.5 per cent.

The secretary said he stands squarely against going back to production controls on farmers.

"I'm against government-owned reserves that hang like a dead weight over markets, pulling a ceiling on farmers' prices and opportunities."

He said farmers' total income has picked up in the last few years, averaging $16.4 billion for 1969 through 1972. That compares with $13.8 billion from 1961 through 1968, he said, or a 19 per cent increase.

"I won't be happy until the average income of farm people is at least as high as that of nonfarm people," said Butz, "and even that won't satisfy me."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon said Thursday "there will be no further concessions on our part" at the Vietnam peace talks unless Hanoi, in his view, agrees to negotiate seriously.

This was but one item in a 45-minute unannounced-in-advance news conference that Nixon began by saying he will leave Washington for Communist China next Thursday.

Talking without interruption for about 15 minutes at the outset, Nixon said his meetings with Chinese leaders would represent more of a dialogue than negotiations because "we are in truth at a beginning."

Nixon was asked if he felt it was fair to the voters and rival would-be presidential candidates to expect no presentation of alternatives to the eight-point Vietnam peace proposal he unveiled before a nationwide television audience Jan. 25.

Nixon responded: "All have a right to say what they want. They must decide if it is right to say it."

Nixon said that while out of office, he had many objections to Vietnam policy but that as the Republican presidential candidate in 1968 he vowed he would say nothing to jeopardize peace efforts.

Nixon said some of his Vietnam critics—and he was talking in the context of rivals for the White House—might be encouraging the enemy in his cause rather than "encouraging him to end the war."

He said "various presidential candidates saw fit to propose a solution that went beyond" his Jan. 25 plan.

He said this might have the inevitable effect of encouraging Hanoi to stall peace talks and wait out November's U.S. election.

Nixon talked about halting further concessions to Hanoi under present circumstances in discussing a Saigon news conference Thursday in which President Nguyen Van Thieu suggested there is a split between his government and the United States over the latest Nixon peace proposal.

Nixon said that all Paris peace proposals by the allies have had joint Washington-Saigon approval. He added: Any future proposals that will be made will be joint proposals of the government of the United States and the government of South Vietnam.

He described as courageous Thieu's announcement, simultaneous with the unveiling of the eight-point Nixon plan, that the South Vietnamese chief would voluntarily resign a month before any new elections resulting from a peace settlement.

Of the Paris talks, Nixon said Hanoi has not responded to his eight points and declared, "We are ready to negotiate." But he added "There will be no further concessions on our part" until or unless the other side joins in genuine negotiations.

The President, in his opening announcement, said that during his China visit, he and the leaders of the two countries will issue a joint communique on substantive matters.

He reported that his itinerary "is being kept flexible," and added, "there will not be a great deal of what I would call... sightseeing."

The President went on: "We have both agreed that... first priority must be given to our talks."

Criticized by many on the right flank of the Republican party for his overtures to Peking, Nixon said without referring to critics, "This trip should not be one that should create very great optimism or great pessimism."

He added, however, that "it will mark a watershed... a new chapter" in relations between the United States and mainland China.

He said he hoped that chapter would be one of new communication, negotiations rather than confrontation and the avoidance of armed conflict.

The President was asked if he might, while in China, offer American aid to that country.

He declined to give a straightaway answer, saying it "involves the agenda items," but said that if he is asked about the subject while in China, "I will have an answer."

Price Panel Freezes Private Utility Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission Thursday froze all private utility rates across the nation and gave itself until March 10 to sharpen its utility price guidelines.

The freeze means that virtually all electric, gas, telephone, telegraph, railroad, airline and interstate bus and trucking rates will be held for up to 30 days at whatever rates were legally in effect at midnight Wednesday.

It temporarily blocks about 900 requests for increases totaling billions of dollars, the commission said.

Publicly-owned utilities, such as public mass transit systems and municipal water operations, are not frozen. Their rates may go up.

Price Commission chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said the temporary freeze was ordered because the panel's three-and-a-half week old utility regulations have turned out to be too vague.

He said the commission will hold four days of public hearings, its first open session on any subject, beginning next Feb. 22.

"The prime objective of the public hearings is to create more explicit guidelines that can be given the regulatory agencies so that they can more properly certify rate increases to the Price Commission," he said.

Grayson said the commission also wants to hear views of a concerned public, and said almost 40 per cent of the commission's mail has concerned utility rate increases.

He also said the freeze and public hearings should not be taken to indicate that utility rates will soon be freed from controls, or that most or any of the frozen utility rate requests will be struck down.

Grayson said any person who has a substantial interest in the hearings or who represents a group or class of such persons may request to participate. They must write the commission before next Wednesday.

U.S., South Viet Planes Retaliate

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese warplanes took to the air in large numbers Thursday in intense raids to counter increased enemy attacks in the central and northern provinces.

Military spokesmen said U.S. Navy and Air Force jet fighters-bombers flew 85 strikes in South Vietnam, compared to a daily average of less than 10 in the past four months.

Four of the raids were in the northern 1st military region and the rest in central Binh Dinh, Pleiku and Kontum provinces.

Propeller-driven Skyraiders and subsonic jets of the South Vietnamese air force flew another 85 strikes, many of them in the central highlands and coastal lowlands where an enemy offensive has been predicted.

The targets were suspected enemy troop concentrations, bunkers and supply trails. Some strikes were in direct support of allied ground troops battling Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces around the outskirts of district towns and military camps.

U.S. reconnaissance jets also ranged over North Vietnam to pinpoint supply buildups in the event President Nixon orders another bombing campaign against the North.

Besides the smaller jets, U.S. B52 bombers rained explosives on an enemy base camp 26 miles southwest of Da Nang. The Stratofortresses flew six separate missions near South Vietnam's second largest city after it was hit by a 25-round rocket barrage Wednesday (Turn To Page Eighteen) (See "Planes")

Danish Singer Vows She Will Tell Irving Story

NEW YORK (AP) — Nina van Pallandt flew in from London Thursday after having vowed "to tell the truth about Clifford Irving, even if it means him going to jail."

On arrival at Kennedy Airport, she told reporters, "I do not want to answer any questions."

The blonde Danish cabaret singer is scheduled to testify Monday before a federal grand jury probing possible mail fraud in the mystery surrounding Irving's purported autobiography of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Irving claims he collected the material in 100 hours of meetings with Hughes and that one of them was in Mexico just a year ago.

Miss van Pallandt, who has said she loves Irving, disputes that claim, saying she was with Irving on the Mexican trip and that he could not have met Hughes during the less than two hours they were apart. The cabaret singer, estranged wife of a Dutch baron, made her pledge to tell the whole truth through her manager John Marshall before leaving London.

The fraud question was also being investigated in Zurich, Switzerland, where Robert G. Morvillo, chief of the criminal division in the U.S. attorney's office, and Asst. U.S. Atty. John J. Tighe Jr. arrived earlier in the day. They were trying to clarify just what happened to $650,000 intended for Hughes, but deposited in banks there by a woman Irving has acknowledged is his wife, Edith.

The money was paid by the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. to Irving for relay to Hughes as advance payment for rights to the book. A voice purporting to be that of Hughes said in a telephone interview with a group of reporters that he had never received it.

Irving later admitted that his wife Edith, using the name

"Helga R. Hughes," endorsed the three checks making up the amount "H.R. Hughes" and deposited them in a Zurich bank under that name. She later is said to have withdrawn the money and put $442,000 of it in another bank calling herself Hannah Rosenkrantz, the name of her previous husband's present wife.

The U.S. prosecutors said they went to Zurich in connection with statements made by Mrs. Irving to the grand jury. This appeared to conflict with other reports that she had pleaded the Fifth Amendment to avoid self-incrimination.

A Swiss district attorney, Dr. Peter Veleff, said no new details of the Swiss probe could be disclosed.

Miss van Pallandt, wearing a beige dress and green scarf, said "I'm flabbergasted" when asked what she thought of the publicity the mystery has received.

NATO Gets Red Test In Atlantic

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington has likened the Soviet Union to a "common hotel burglar," who goes up and down the corridors trying doors to see if any have been left unlocked.

The senator was probably referring to the Kremlin's well-known proclivity for sniffing out political instability or social unrest wherever it may be found. But the simile is accurate in a military sense, also.

Soviet aircraft recently stepped up their probing of North Atlantic Ocean airspace, reports Aviation Week and Space Technology magazine. The brunt of intercepts by North Atlantic Treaty Organization pilots fell, by sheer geographical location, to the Royal Air Force.

At one point, says the RAF, Soviet penetration amounted to hundreds of probes in a short period of time, many at wave-top level, and was apparently aimed at gaining maximum knowledge of NATO's ability to react while forcing the RAF and its allies to a maximum use of electronic countermeasures.

The RAF will not say how many Soviet aircraft have probed into the west nor at what distances they have been intercepted, though presumably the Soviets know. So far, NATO has managed to keep one step ahead of changing Soviet tactics.

The Kremlin is not contemplating war with NATO. The RAF emphasizes that at no time have the Russians actually penetrated British airspace nor have they ever made any hostile moves.

They're just trying doors.

Professor In The Lab

It is a frequent complaint among college freshmen that, far from being allowed to sit at the feet of eminent faculty members, they are customarily left to the tender mercies of teaching assistants. This is not universally true, but it is a common situation.

Consider, then, the current experience of 26 students in a freshman chemistry laboratory section at the University of California at Berkeley: their teacher is Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg. He is back at teaching after an eventful ten-year stint as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Prior to his AEC service, Dr. Seaborg was for three years chancellor of the Berkeley campus. Twenty years ago he shared the Nobel prize for the discovery of transuranium elements. Just now, in addition to his other duties, he is serving also as president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. A man of sufficient distinction, then, to gladden the heart of any freshman who dreams of studying with the masters.

Dr. Seaborg's current teaching assignment conforms with long tradition at Berkeley. For many years it has been customary for senior faculty members in chemistry to meet freshman laboratory sections. It is a sound practice. Who can doubt that to have such a man as Glenn Seaborg as one's freshman mentor would be an experience of lasting enrichment and stimulation?

Communication

To the Editor:

I have two complaints to voice—one about the lack of cab service at night and another about school transportation.

Jacksonville has two cab companies, neither of which provides all-night service; in fact, one closes at five o'clock. People who work until 1 a.m. have to walk, bum a ride or drive. Some of us, like me, do not have a car. A few weeks ago, I placed a time call for 1 a.m. and ended up staying all night with a friend as did another elderly lady. We definitely need 24-hour cab service and I think some of the businessmen interested in our town should see to it that we get better service or another cab company.

As for school transportation, there are 25 children from my neighborhood attending Armstrong Junior High School, which is a mile away. I think they should have bus transportation, but busing is provided only if the school is one and one-half miles away. They tell us to send our children to school to get an education; but if I send my children walking to school in below zero weather, they wind up with colds, sore throats or flu.

I would like to know whether the children whose parents are teachers, principals or business personnel walk to school.

State Of World Report Stresses Policy Revision

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon in his 80,000-word report to Congress on the State of the World claims "signal progress" during 1971 for his efforts to forge more realistic American foreign policy to deal with a world in flux and turmoil. The President's review of U.S. activity on the international front during the third year of his administration emphasizes the fact that it was a period of great activity on the part of the United States which either resulted from or caused considerable ferment in global relationships. Few people would contest the claim that the administration was extremely active in pushing its initiatives and stirring up friend and foe alike. Men of good will, however, will undoubtedly disagree on whether all of the movement foreshadowed hope of progress toward peace and stability or was more in the nature of action for the sake of action.

Reshaping Approaches

The report in effect constituted a summary of the progress claimed by the administration in pursuing the balance of power by bringing maximum American pressure to bear at a minimum of cost in men and money.

Nixon describes his philosophy for a new American foreign policy as an effort to reshape American approaches to "the requirements of the new realities," one of which he described as "the end of the bipolar postwar world."

By this he meant the revision of American policy to take into account the fact that the 25-year supremacy of Russia and the United States as the sole centers of major power is giving way rapidly to a situation in which China, Japan and a rapidly integrating Western Europe must also be taken into account in assessing the international balance of power.

Two Breakthroughs

It is clear from the report that Nixon considers his success in arranging a summit conference with Chinese leaders as one of the major "breakthroughs" accomplished during 1971. He claims to have ended a "25-year period of implacable hostility" between China and the United States but acknowledges that this is a "fragile" rapprochement which is only a beginning.

He listed another "breakthrough"—progress on a number of issues between the United States and the Soviet Union, the most important of which are an agreement on better civilian access to Communist-encircled West Berlin and some developments in the Russian-American talks in Vienna and Helsinki on the possible limitation of defensive and offensive strategic nuclear weapons.

However, he acknowledges that the two countries still are far apart on some aspects of the issue, particularly on limiting the further increase of offensive weapons.

Peking's Silent Power Struggle

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — This reporter will never forget the day in Yenan, 27 years ago, when one of Mao Tse-tung's intimates drew me aside and, making sure no one else could hear, declared that he was a virtual prisoner.

"They will not let me go back to my army," he said. "They keep me here because they do not trust me."

Speaking this was Ch'en Yi, whose death is now reported — ex-marshal of Red China's armed forces, former vice premier and foreign minister and veteran of the Long March, when he had held ground in the south as Mao and the main body of Communists retreated north.

Ch'en was then one of the 20 men who ruled Communist China. He was Mao's intimate at Yenan, the personal faith between the two was great and Ch'en was completely loyal to that trust. He was commanding general of the New Fourth Army, one of the two major forces in the Communist command at that time.

Yet Ch'en was talking in this vein to me, a foreigner, an American Army officer on leave of absence from the Wall Street Journal, the symbol of capitalism and the antithesis of Communism.

This was one of the periods when Mao was fighting for his very existence as head of the Chinese Communist party. On the surface, things were smooth, as they seem superficially today. Chou En-lai, with unruffled mien, deals with President Nixon's advance parties as though nothing were happening within the party — while a deep and bitter power struggle rages in the background.

What was happening then in Yenan in the 1940s is what is happening again today in the 1970s. Mao's rivals have been hacking away at those personally loyal to him.

The struggle within China has been all the more complicated because one and another of the anti-Mao group has sought Russian backing. The Russians, on their side, have attempted to build up their own clique within the top levels of the Chinese Communist party. They have offered high stakes — modern military arms, nuclear know-how, technical assistance.

The Moscow price, though, has been high — subservience in foreign and military affairs and a heavy say in industrial and agricultural development.

This Mao fought. But the struggle was not limited to the relationship with Russia, or over what philosophy of Communism would prevail, or the Russians, or the Chinese variety developed by Mao.

It was a personal struggle for power.

Of late, the struggle has often turned to who would surround Mao and be his advisers — who would be in the line of succession. That is, as Mao aged, the battle for succession became more important than the battle to oust Mao. For he had become a national legend, useful in holding the country together.

Whoever was leader among the candidates for succession was almost certain of political decapitation, one way or another. This was why Chou En-lai, whose claim to the No. 2 spot has been as great as any man's these past years, has chosen to remain as number three. Lin Biao, No. 2 until recently, was positioned to take the heat and be the inevitable victim of those seeking power.

Today, then, Mao has not many old friends to turn to.

Ann Landers:

Goes Back To Original Advice After Serious Re-Evaluation

Dear Readers: In the past, when my readers have persuaded me that I've made a mistake, I have reversed my stand. I don't mind admitting a mistake—only a fool believes he is infallible.

Recently a woman wrote about a family problem. Her husband nearly died because of what she described as a sloppy operation. She asked me how to go about suing the surgeon. I advised her to consult with the Grievance Committee of the County Medical Society. Dozens of lawyers blasted me for that advice. "Taking a complaint against a doctor to the County Medical Society," wrote one attorney, "is like asking the Ku Klux Klan for help with a segregation problem."

I printed the lawyer's letter and advised my readers to skip the County Medical Society and see an attorney. When that column appeared, the roof fell in. Doctors by the hundreds wrote to say, "Your original advice was right. Why did you change it?" The calibre and tone of the mail caused me to do some serious re-evaluating. And now I'm doing something I've never done in the 17 years I've been writing this column. I am going BACK to my original advice.

Here's what I have learned as a result of this exchange. There are shoddy technicians and incompetents in every field. The medical profession is no exception. But unfortunately, when a doctor makes a mistake, there's a funeral. The medical profession has set up tissue committees in hospitals to check every surgical procedure. The removed tissue is examined and a pathologist has before him the evidence. He knows the answer to the question: "Was that operation necessary?" If a surgeon removes a healthy appendix or a healthy breast, he won't be around long enough to perform too many more unnecessary operations. The medical profession also has grievance committees to hear complaints. The men who serve (without salary) are the top-notch physicians in the community. If they find evidence of criminal negligence or malpractice, they will help the complainant by testifying in court against the doctor. The medical society is not interested in protecting incompetent members of their profession.

The United States would do well to adopt the Canadian and English procedures in regard to criminal suits against physicians. This would mean abolishing the contingency system which encourages phony claims. A shyster knows that most physicians have malpractice insurance and will settle out of court rather than take the time from their practice and risk the bad publicity connected with a lawsuit. An unprincipled lawyer will take any case regardless of merit for a percentage (usually 50 percent) of what he can collect from the doctor—which, of course, means from the insurance company.

Malpractice insurance in California runs as high as $12,000 a year for some anesthesiologists and plastic surgeons. Who do you think pays for these exorbitant policies? The patient, of course.

The patient also pays for "defensive medicine" which means the doctor will take five sets of X-rays instead of two, and eight laboratory tests instead of three. He wants to have plenty of evidence in case he gets sued.

I am not defending organized medicine. My interest is in improving health services for Americans of every economic level. I am constantly needing the American Medical Association to get with it and I've done my share to get Congress to allocate money for medical education and research. But I do believe the medical profession does a good job of policing its own. The dedicated physicians want to throw the rascals out.

Law For Today

Q. Does a person who has served time in a penitentiary for a crime lose his citizenship?

A. A person who is found guilty of an "infamous" crime does not lose his citizenship as a result. What he loses are certain rights of citizenship—namely, his right to vote, to serve on a jury and to hold public office. The right to vote and to serve on a jury can be restored by the governor but not the right to hold public office.

BARBS

By PHIL PASTORET
Bet you can't define "extra money" these days.

If, as the song says, life is just a bowl of cherries, why did we wind up with most of the pits?

We have heard no suggestions from Women's Lib that the custom of Leap Year be abolished.

Show us the man who wants to live his entire life just as it has been, and we'll point out a fellow with a very faulty memory.

America Is A Wonderful Place!

By DAVID HENDIN
NEW YORK (NEA)—On a recent rainy day in Manhattan I had to take a bus to the opposite side of town. The sky was dark and the mood was dismal. But an exchange I watched on the 104 bus brightened my day. I boarded on West 120th Street and the bus was almost empty. At about 110th Street an old man, nearly 70, I would say, got on. He sat next to me and propped his umbrella on the seat at his other side.

He said nothing. I said nothing. About ten blocks later an elderly lady boarded the bus. She was at least 65.

The bus was still almost empty, but the lady pushed the old man's umbrella right toward him and sat down on his right.

The man grumbled for a moment then turned to her and said: "All of the empty seats on this bus and you had to push my umbrella away and sit here?" The woman answered: "I paid like you paid and I'll sit where I want."

"Da, da, da, blah, blah, blah," the man mocked. "This is America and it's a free country," the lady said. He countered: "Lucky for you it's America—a wonderful place—or maybe you couldn't sit here at all."

And then, with an air of finality, the man looked away. Both had been speaking perfect English. But soon the old man slowly turned toward the woman again. "Do you speak German?" he asked in the language.

"Yes, I speak German, and Hebrew, too, but what is it of your business?" she answered suspiciously.

"Well," said the man, "if you speak German—and Hebrew, too—maybe I can forgive you for pushing my umbrella away and sitting here."

Oh, is that so," she said. "Where are you from?"

And the conversation began. I stopped paying attention because it became more rapid and complicated, rendering my fundamental German all but useless.

But the tone was warm and friendly. I heard talk of home, children, jobs and families. Each had lost a spouse.

A few dozen blocks later the bus stopped and both got up.

Two Charged In State Library Thefts

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Two Springfield residents have been charged with grand theft in connection with stolen library items, including two tinplate photographs of Abraham Lincoln.

Police said they arrested Margaret Bodine, 43, and James A. Woodruff at a Springfield residence Wednesday and confiscated thousands of dollars of library materials, including books and the pictures.

The articles were taken over a period of months, many of them from the Lincolnland Library, according to authorities.

They added that the tinplate photos of Lincoln were made by famed Civil War photographer Matthew Brady.

Bond was not set immediately.

ECKERT RAPS SLATEMAKING PROCESS

DECATUR, Ill. (UPI)—Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert has lashed out at the political slate-making process, terming it a system which easily lends itself to corruption.

Speaking in Decatur Wednesday, Eckert called Illinois politics a "closed corporation" of the politically elite.

"And it is this sort of system, where a few men behind closed doors determine who will run for state office, that lends itself so easily to corruption of state officers," Eckert said.

Eckert is an independent Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, running with Daniel Walker, who is challenging Lt. Gov. Paul Simon in the gubernatorial primary race. Simon has the nod of the Democratic party in the race.

PERCY ASKS END TO BIAS AGAINST ELDERLY

QUINCY, Ill. (UPI)—Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., calling for an end to discrimination against the elderly, says one out of four in the over-65 age group live on poverty-level income.

"The elderly are similar to another subculture, our youth," Percy said Wednesday at a meeting of the Adams County Lincoln Club. "They are largely unemployed, they are introspective and often depressed, and they are heavy users of drugs."

"But unlike the way we treat our youth, we treat the elderly with cruelty,"

Commenting on President Nixon's upcoming trip to Mainland China, Percy said, "The president's appearance in China will let the Chinese know that the United States recognizes they exist."

He also said the American farmer "will be one of those greatly benefiting from the opening of trade between the U.S. and China."

NEGRO AIR HOSTESSES FOR AFRICAN FLIGHTS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Pan American World Airways announced today that it will include Negro air hostesses on flights to South Africa.

"They are likely to fly to Johannesburg in the near future," a spokesman for the airline said. He said the decision was made after visits to Pretoria by officials of Pan Am's flight service department late last year.

The hostesses will stay at South Africa's only multiracial hotel at Jan Smuts Airport.

TRAILER TRUCK FIRE BLAST INJURES FIREMEN

TEWKSBURY, Mass. (AP)—Twenty-one firemen have been injured in a fire and explosion that destroyed two trailer trucks carrying liquid natural gas.

Several of the firefighters were hurt when a truck full of gas exploded, sending a fireball hundreds of feet into the air at the Lowell Gas Co. plant Wednesday night.

The injured included 19 members of Tewksbury's 38-man fire department and two firemen from nearby Billerica.

The blast "fit up the sky so you could read a newspaper," said Fire Chief Henry L. Hilton of Andover, who directed the firefighting after Tewksbury Chief William Chandler was injured.

George Doulames, an executive vice president of Lowell Gas, said the fire started after the loaded truck backed into and ruptured a pipe used to transfer liquid gas from the trucks to large storage tanks. He estimated total damage at $75,000.

Campaign Best Ever

According to the audit report by Cannell & Cannell, the United Fund campaign produced a total of $127,632.00, which was the best ever. Roger Cannell reported that the fund is in better financial condition than in several years, and that there should be enough money on hand and due from pledges to pay all allocations to the agencies in full for 1972.

He also stated that from 1966 to 1971 the cost of conducting the campaign had remained stationary, the cost in 1966 being $10,952, and in 1971, $10,694.

From 1966 to 1968 a professional fund raiser was employed. From 1969 to 1971 a local man has been used on a full time basis, whereas the outside man was in the community only 6 to 8 weeks.

Plaques were presented to the general co-chairmen, Vern Fernandes and Weldon Fogal, and to Darrow Steinheimer for the "unselfish and dedicated service" to the community.

With the conclusion of the business by the old board, Richard Brown assumed the chair and requested action on the employment of an executive director for 1972-1973. Jewell A. Mann was re-employed for this position.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11— Born today, you will be surrounded by friends and loved ones all your life — yet you will be inclined toward depression and general unhappiness. Although you are easily pleased in the sense that you enjoy all manner of activities, every sign of friendship or love, and all your personal and business or professional relationships, you nevertheless have many moments of each day when you cannot help stopping to ask yourself sadly about life — what it is, your place in it, and so on.

Like many born under the sign of Aquarius, you need to learn to relax, to take things as they come. Once you are able to do this, you will find that the hours, the days, the weeks, and the years open up for you to reveal boundless sources of joy. Once you learn to relax, your great love of nature will be able to develop and lead you to an appreciation of beauty and order you little knew existed.

Your ability to bend with the wind, to yield to existing circumstances in such a way that you are able to take advantage of your environment rather than vice versa: these should develop to an extremely high degree during your middle years. When they do, you will possess all the flexibility you need for the achievement of real success in an ever-changing world.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Saturday, February 12
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — Not a good day for the Aquarius who had planned activities for the entire family. Caught on the horns of a dilemma, you might be wise to retreat.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21) — Don't fret should social activities planned for this evening suddenly not sit right with you. It's not too late to cancel out.

ARIES (March 20-April 20) — Not the day for problem solving. Let things take their natural course and you will be a lot better off than if you try to force issues.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — Low spirits cause a change in attitude that may well be the source of family argument this morning. Seek underlying causes of strife.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — If it is possible to rid yourself of anxieties by consulting a professional, by all means do so. Don't extend a period of worry if you don't have to.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — Though it is too late now to change your mind without ill effects, it's not too late to change your attitude. Determine to make the best of things.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — The wise guess could cause you considerable anxiety this afternoon. You will risk much less if you will educate yourself in the available choices.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — The wise Virgo will try to keep from making a promise today, especially to children. Another's vanity makes this a difficult day for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — A high-tension day that may leave you extremely nervous by evening. Spend a relaxing time with family and friends; no work after dark.

'Dirty Harry' Rates As One Of Best Films

By BILL GEDDES

Rarely am I able to come out of a theatre thoroughly satisfied with the motion picture I have just seen. It is also unusual nowadays to be able to sit back and watch a film, knowing that the director, actors, and technicians know exactly what they are doing. It is the result of seeing "Dirty Harry" that I was able to elicit these two responses.

Director - producer Don Siegel has put together an excellent piece of filmmaking on the procedure of a San Francisco cop (Clint Eastwood) who is trying to track down a psychopathic killer.

With the help of sharp editing by Carl Pingitore, Siegel directs every scene so that it is played out to the fullest and then edited in such a way that the film almost literally leaves the audience on the edge of their seats.

Nevertheless, the film's excellence does not end with the editing — it goes on and on. Everything from the spine-tling music by Lalo Schiffrin ("Mission: Impossible") to the amazing camera work by Bruce Surtees, do nothing but enhance the picture's suspenseful quality.

Even the acting can not go without mention. As one would expect, Clint Eastwood is at his "casual" best and is almost able to steal the show with his performance, but is abruptly halted by Andy Robinson who is known in the movie as "Scorpio," the deranged killer. Without going into too many details, I will simply say: brilliant. I guess by now one realizes that I found the picture to be one of the best films in current release.

But before I attempt to go any further, I think I will just stop and let you find out for yourself how good "Dirty Harry" actually is for I believe that the only honest thing that is to review can possibly do is to persuade you to stand up, walk out, and see it.

THE DOCTOR SAYS No Good Way To Grow New Hair

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—How does a man go about growing hair on his body? Some of my friends and I are hairless, but not hopeless. We have heard that using special creams, cheeses, foods and any number of other claims are not successful. About the only thing they will do is cost you money. I have yet to see a bona fide, successful way of growing hair on a bald head. My best advice to you would be not to be taken in by any charlatan putting out false advertisement with such claims.

There have been a few reports of producing a few scraggly hairs on the top of the head by application of cream containing testosterone, the male hormone. This has not been sufficiently successful to suggest it to anyone for practical application. In fact, most people feel that testosterone is a significant factor in inducing baldness. At least you might as well adopt this explanation and claim to have a high level of virility.

Transplants of hair follicles to the scalp have been done. This is a long, time consuming project where hair follicles may be transplanted from the chest to the scalp. This assumes that one has hair on the chest to transplant.

Another approach has been to place underneath the scalp a synthetic or plastic type material with little attachments that stick through the skin which enables one to anchor a hair piece down solidly. Such a hair piece can be worn while swimming or engaging in any other activity and look like a normal head of hair. This procedure is very expensive and I suspect there are only a few places where you could have it done safely.

My best advice is to learn to enjoy it. Just think of all the problems you have escaped. If you are disturbed because of the present emphasis on hair,

BLUFFS MAN WITH AIR FORCE ATC AT TEXAS BASE
SAN ANTONIO — U.S. Air Force Master Sergeant Robert Masterson, son of Mrs. Jane C. Masterson, Bluffs, has arrived for duty at Randolph AFB, Texas.

Sergeant Masterson, an administrative superintendent, is assigned to a unit of the Air Training Command. ATC provides flying, technical and basic military training for the USAF. He previously served at Lackland AFB, Texas.

The sergeant is a 1951 graduate of Bluffs Community High School.

His wife, Evelyn, is the daughter of Mrs. Treclir Irwin, 909 W. South Street, Lebanon, Indiana.

PATHWAY HOSTS CARNIVAL NIGHT FOR YOUNG ADULTS

Pathway School hosted an evening Winter Carnival party for 15 mentally handicapped young adults Tuesday, Feb. 1.

The party consisted of a variety of carnival games played for prizes and refreshments.

Supervisors for the party were Jackie Barber, Emily Vincent, Michelle Wright, and Mrs. Tom Stanley of Jacksonville, Mrs. Elva Duncan, Mrs. John Barber, Mary Riemann, and Dennis Langellier of Pathway School.

Winter Carnival was the fifth evening party for mentally handicapped young adults to be sponsored by the Jacksonville Area Association for Retarded Children during the 1971-72 school year.

REAL PRECISION
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Techniques used here in production of guidance for the Navy's Poseidon missile make hair splitting seem simple.

The precision sensors are built to tolerances of 5-millionths of an inch—the equivalent of slicing the thickness of a dollar bill 1,000 times, says Charles Nichols, who directs their production at Honeywell's Aerospace Division.

maybe you should think about starting a new style. Yul Brynner did it in a rather big and financially successful way.

I would like to add that if and when someone is successful in correcting baldness, it is going to be a very well-known achievement and you won't have to ask where to go to get it done. Men and some women have been searching for cures for baldness for generations.

Polly's Pointers

Two Ways To Get Rid Of Pesky Silverfish

By POLLY CRAMER...
DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mrs. V. N. who wants to get rid of silverfish. Mix borax powder and sugar and sprinkle it around in cabinets or around the basement tubs. It not only gets rid of them but rid of roaches, too. The sugar attracts the silverfish and then the borax does the job.—PAT

DEAR POLLY—Do tell Mrs. V.N. that five or six years ago I found a remedy for silverfish that REALLY works. Just sprinkle (make a line of) epsom salts around the wall on the floor or your closet. Not poisonous either.—S.S.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—My three-year-old son made two marks on the front of my blond mahogany dresser with a ballpoint pen. Does anyone know how I can remove these?—MRS. S. F. R.

DEAR MRS. S.F.R.—Do read Velma's letter farther down in this column.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with those who want my money in exchange for NOTHING. Recent examples are the paper boy who is out soliciting new customers and yet continually fails to deliver to those he already has or the milkman promising delivery by 8 a.m. and then never coming until 9:30 or so, bankers and realtors who "forget" vital calls for days and the employer who hires only experienced personnel but never gives anyone the chance to get that experience.—BRENDA

DEAR POLLY—As I was polishing my chest of drawers, I was really upset to discover a long streak of ballpoint pen ink. I applied toothpaste with a dry cloth and it came off beautifully in just a few minutes. I am the reader who received a Polly Dollar back in 1963 for sending in the Pointer about removing crayon marks from painted walls with toothpaste. I still have that silver dollar. Thank you so much for all of the wonderful Pointers through the years. They have been great.—VELMA

Thank you for your kind words, Velma. We love all you loyal readers.—POLLY

Cleveland 'Spyglass Detail' Cuts Thefts

By WILLIAM C. HOOP

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The young man walks slowly up and down a row of parked cars, casting nervous looks from side to side. He wears dark trousers and a wool jacket with deep pockets.

The gravel crunches as he walks up beside a shiny, new hardtop. He looks around again then suddenly the hand in one of the coat pockets produces a long-bladed screwdriver which is quickly inserted between the front and rear windows and under the driver's door lock.

Under Two Minutes
Pop. The lock is up, the door is open and the man is inside, head swung under the dashboard. The screwdriver is inserted near the rear of the ignition assembly. A twist of the wrist and the assembly is apart. The screwdriver is replaced by four colored wires shorted together at one end. The wires are touched to prongs on the ignition producing a small electrical spark. The car's engine starts.

Elapsed time: one minute, 30 seconds.

The man sits up in the seat and pulls the automatic transmission lever to "drive." But he doesn't go anywhere. His path has been blocked by another car, and two men with guns in their hands who are not smiling are pulling open the door and inviting the man to step out of the car with his hands up.

"Where did you guys come from?" the man asks as his hands are cuffed behind his back. "I looked around ... I didn't see anybody for blocks."

"That's right," says one of the armed men as he slams shut the rear door of his unmarked police cruiser. "You looked everywhere but up."

Keeping Close Watch
Up, in downtown Cleveland, could be a perch on the observation deck of the terminal tower or any other tall building. Down is a maze of streets and parking lots, showrooms for car thieves shopping for a new model.

The average was about 25 cars a day stolen from the downtown area. Then the Cleveland police department activated its "spyglass detail."

The result was a drop in thefts to about five a day and a lot of surprised, would-be car thieves who never saw the cop on the roof, binoculars to his eyes, walkie-talkie in hand.

"Of course, even one car stolen is too many," said Sgt. Raymond A. Wohl, who heads the "spyglass" unit. "But we are pleased with our record so far."

"Since we were activated the first of December, the rate of thefts has dropped and we had close to 30 arrests the first six weeks."

The unit was in service for 15 months prior to last July when financial problems in the city put it out of existence. In those 15 months, some 370 arrests were made by the unit, Wohl said.

After All Criminals
"But we don't just go after the car thieves," he said, "with a man on a building with binoculars and in touch with the rest of the team by radio, he might see a purse snatching for instance. He follows the purse snatcher in his binoculars and continually radios the man's position. Our men on the ground can then cut him off and make the arrest."

The detail currently is made up of five men, all of whom work in street clothes. Wohl said the usual procedure is to station one man on a building. The others are in two cars, cruising around but in constant contact with the "spyglass" man. At least one of the cars is an older model with out-of-state plates carrying only a radio as special police equipment.

Arrest Him Before
If a suspected car thief is spotted, he object is to arrest him before he gets a chance to pull away, avoiding risky high speed chases through the downtown area.

"But we have to go like a rocket," Wohl said. "If these guys take more than a minute and a half to get in the car and get it going, then they're not very good."

The team's job is complicated by the apparent ease of getting inside a locked automobile and starting its engine and by the proliferation of break-in and ignition devices. Wohl said that since the unit was reactivated it has confiscated dozens of blank keys to all car makes, ignition jumper wires, screwdrivers and pincher pliers for breaking into cars, ignition blocks and most recently, the newest device for removing locks, a "slaphammer," which allows the thief to pop off the door and ignition locks in a matter of seconds.

"We could use three times as many men to stop the hundreds of car thieves in the city," Wohl said.

"But the word is getting around that just because you can't see anybody doesn't mean there aren't a pair of eyes watching your every move."

POST TO DE PRIEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — James De Priest, 35, nephew of contralto Marian Anderson, has been appointed associate conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, whose home is Kennedy Center.

De Priest will conduct three weeks of concerts next season and be principal assistant to music director Antal Dorati for musical policy and personnel.

De Priest won first prize in the 1964 Dimitri Mitropoulos International Conductors Competition and was assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic the next season. In 1962 he had been sent by the State Department to tour the Near and Far East as an American specialist in music. He conducted and lectured in Thailand, Taiwan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Egypt and Lebanon. He was stricken with polio in Thailand and when he entered the Mitropoulos Competition, at the suggestion of Leonard Bernstein, he was still using braces and crutches.

Infrared Ray "Cats Eye" May Replace Automobile Headlamp

NEW YORK (UPI)—In a decade or so the automobile headlamp may be replaced by an infrared ray "cats eye" that sees in the dark and flashes a picture of the roadway on a TV-like screen on the dashboard.

That's one of the possible products of infrared photography, which already is an important industry, says Dr. Conrad Parlanti, president of Dynarad, Inc., Norwood, Mass. Dynarad recently began marketing a lightweight infrared camera in Japan and licensing the Nikon company to produce it there.

Anytime an American firm succeeds in selling cameras in Japan nowadays, it's news.

Most people know about the infrared camera, which can take pictures in total darkness, from reading detective stories. Actually, says Parlanti, a consumer type infrared camera such as the fictional sleuths are supposed to use, is some years in the future. However, the military have some excellent expensive infrared cameras.

Parlanti's firm has the lion's share of the $12 million a year infrared camera business in the United States and he says it's a business that's sure to grow because "the uses of infrared photography have scarcely scratched the surface."

Two Competitors
Dynarad has only two competitors in its part of the infrared photography field, both Swedish firms. But Perkin-Elmer, Hughes Aircraft, Texas Instruments and Bendix Corp. are in military and other phases of the business.

Parlanti foresees a whole new infrared television technology eventually developing for taking pictures underwater and outdoors and indoors on land without the use of bright lighting. He also foresees extensive use of infrared navigation signal systems both in the air and on the waterways.

The infrared "cats eye" headlamps for automobiles would be a logical development of an infrared ray navigation system already in use in some fighter planes.

The present uses of infrared photography range from the prosaic to the extremely sophisticated. Dynarad's small infrared camera, for instance, has a range of more than two miles when fitted with a zoom lens, although it weighs less than 10 pounds. This makes it useful for aerial surveying of crops or forests to detect incipient plant disease or forest fires just starting. By measuring heat radiation from polluted waters or industrial waste deposits, infrared photography becomes an important ecological tool.

It is used for non-destructive testing of a huge variety of products, for periodic testing of power transformers and lines, for detecting heat leaks in buildings and finding flaws in many materials.

Military Use
The military use it for passive surveillance of personnel or enemy intruders and for detecting faults in weapon systems.

Tire and rubber manufacturers, textile and garment producers, the automotive industry, electronics manufacturers and the shipping industry also use it to monitor products and equipment and detect flaws or incipient flaws.

Infrared photography is being used more and more in medical laboratories as a preliminary supplement to X-rays. By mapping the warm and cold areas of the surface of the body, it can indicate suspicious areas to be further investigated as possible locations of cancer and other conditions caused by vascular diseases, arthritis and severe burns. Recently it has been used in leprosy diagnosis at the government hospital at Carville, La.

It will detect some conditions where deep X-ray diagnosis would be undesirable.

The Goettings—They Got Mad

Jerry and Reita Goetting

By TOM TIEDE

UPPER SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (NEA) — It began more than a year ago. A husband and wife living near the Saddle River here noticed large trucks dumping rubbish at the stream. Things like pieces of macadam. Great mounds of sterile dirt. Chunks of ugly concrete. "What's happening?" the couple wondered. "It's O.K.," the town mayor told them. "I authorized the dumping myself."

Like hell it's O.K.

And Jerry and Reita Goetting got mad.

The Goettings, one of a thousand families in this community, live in a neighborhood that is flanked by the town's only undeveloped area. It's not a park, but it's like a park. It's a few dozen acres of woods and water set aside as a preserve of natural beauty. It's a wonder for kids. Real fish in the stream and that kind of thing.

To be sure, say the Goettings, it's not the kind of place where dump trucks are welcome. So they complained to town officials and were told that a road was being planned across the area and the dumping was perfectly legal.

The couple didn't agree. They inspected the dump sight and found the debris was drying up a natural pond, and cutting off one of the river's tributaries.

Says Mrs. Goetting: "One day we went down to the dumping grounds and we saw this old turtle crawling around. He was all full of this gunk and junk and he was looking for the water that was no longer there. He crawled away. To die I suppose. And, I don't know, we just knew we couldn't let this go on."

So, late last year, the couple decided to act. They learned the town was breaking up a road somewhere and was going to dump the refuse in the stream. When his wife phoned the news to his office, Goetting told her to stop the trucks any way she could. She did. She and five other housewives, arms folded, faces grim, lined up across the road in a human chain.

Not surprisingly, the Goettings and the environment lost that first round. The wife was arrested. Some city officials passed the word that the couple was nuts. And the neighbors who were previously anxious to help fight the war now retreated: "Oh, well, Jerry, we'd like to go to the council meeting with you but we've got things to do, and, um, we can't get a babysitter anyway."

Thus the couple went on more or less alone. To the town council first, where they advised officials the community was in violation of New Jersey law 58:1-26; which forbids the unauthorized encroachment of any stream. They advised also that the area's pond had been completely obliterated, and back water from the dammed-up stream was creating swamplands and health hazards for blocks.

The council paid little attention. The mayor told them: "Sit down and be quiet, we've heard enough from you." When the Goettings persisted, tempers really flared, and the town engineer ended the whole public debate by shouting: "O.K., we cut off the stream, what are you gonna do about it?"

As it turned out, the Goettings did plenty. They purchased all the maps of the river they could find. They studied town records on the area back to 1935. They learned about flood plains and drainage and, to be sure, small town petty-politics. They argued with the mayor ("I never talked to him by phone because he has an unlisted number"). They argued with the engineer ("I'm afraid he's behind any hope"). They spoke to civic organizations. And finally, they requested help and official determinations from the state agency for environmental protection.

Eventually, the Goettings won. Sort of, anyway. State inspectors advised the town it was in violation of the law and ordered officials to clear out the dumpings, open up the stream tributary, and restore the pond to its original conditions.

But, No cheers. The war isn't over. Town officials still refuse

MRS. STALEY HOSTS TOWN AND COUNTRY AT ROODHOUSE

ROODHOUSE —The Town and Country Home Extension Unit met Monday night in the home of Mrs. Terry Staley. Roll was answered with reports on to admit error. The wild area pond is still covered with a mountain of trash. The stream remains cut and dormant. And the mayor is trying to circumvent the matter by filing for a state permit which would legalize even further rape of the river in question.

And so Reita and Jerry Goetting maintain their guard. One eye on the river, the other on city hall. "We're tired," they say, "but, dammit, we're right."

"My Color for Decoration" with 13 members and two guests present. Guests were Brenda Kelley and Dixie Winters.

The president, Mrs. Donald Smock, conducted the meeting and led the pledge and collect. It was announced that the program planning meeting will be held Feb. 25 at 1:30 o'clock at the Farm Bureau building in Carrollton. The club voted to contribute $20 to the Heart Fund.

The lesson "Coordinating Color in the Home" was presented by the president, Mrs. Larry Coon gave the selected subject on "Growing and Caring for House Plants" with the aid of a film strip.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Smock. The March 6 meeting will be held at the country home of Mrs. Denton Rusten.

Carly Simon Possesses 'Fairly Popular Tastes'

by MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NOW HEAR THIS! And it might well be yet another personalized version of "The Impossible Dream," this time by Peter O'Toole. The actor is making his musical debut as Don Quixote in the film version of "Man of La Mancha," costarring Sophia Loren and James Coco.

She says, "I have fairly popular tastes. I'm not that exotic. I may be adolescent, somebody once said, 'a fringe grown-up,' but I'm not exotic."

Right now, Miss Simon's second LP for Elektra, "Anticipation," is No. 34 in the Feb. 5 Cashbox Magazine best-selling album chart and her single, "Anticipation," is No. 14 on the singles chart. Her first LP, last year, "Carly Simon," also did very well. And there are nominations for Grammy Awards, in the categories of best new artist of 1971 and best female pop vocal performance, for "That's the Way I've Always Heard It Should Be."

Much has been written about Miss Simon's family, that her late father was one of the founders of Simon and Schuster book publishers, that her sister Joanna is an opera singer, her sister Lucy a housewife, and brother Peter a photographer. It was Lucy and Carly who cut "The Simon Sisters" for Kapp during the folk boom.

Less is being said these days that she should have come from a harsher background, for which Miss Simon is glad. "It is such a silly thesis to begin with. I paid all kinds of dues. I don't think the lying-in-the-gutter kind of dues are the only kind."

About her songs, Miss Simon says, "It is very hard for me to generalize about my writing—except that I find it hard. Melodies come easier. Lyrics are often so hard I give them to Jake—Jacob Brackman. He has been a film critic at Esquire. He is a very interesting lyricist. He did 'That's the Way I've Always Heard It Should Be' and 'Dan, My Flamingo' and three that are on the new album. He kind of incorporates a biographical essence; I can never sing a lyric I don't totally identify with. It is partly because he is such a good writer and also he knows me so well."

"I think he could write songs for other people, too—I just don't want him to. I want all his energies for me. It's funny how terribly possessive you become of the people you're associated with in this business. I guess I'm a very possessive person—another Cancer trait."

"I usually write better when my energy level is very high. When I'm actually focusing too much energy and get very agitated. Then the only thing to do is hypnotize myself or put all my energy into writing a song."

"Anticipation" came extremely easily. I think it is a very solid song. It came like in one day. "The Best Thing" I think is one of the nicest things on the first album and it took me a month or two months to write.

"I've made it a point never to record any song that was previously recorded by anybody else."

"I get most satisfaction somewhere between the finishing up of the writing and the finishing up of the recording. When I've finished a song and I know it is good, that is just a tremendous feeling."

"There are all kinds of ghosts on the album, little voices that come in. You're not sure if they're there. It's my favorite thing on the album, the ghosts; I love the way they sneak in there. It's me and Paul Samwell-Smith and Jimmy Ryan, who plays guitar and bass with me, just coming closer to the microphone, overdubbing ourselves."

some of her songs. "There is not one that doesn't come from personal experience. Some are more universal than others. 'Anticipation' is universal; it's about being able to live in the present. Being annoyed at yourself for dwelling too much on the past or worrying about the future, most people can identify with. Sometimes when I'm singing that line in it, 'These are the good old days,' I can get into that pure emotion of right now. But then I come off stage and I think, 'How was it?' or 'What am I going to do now?'"

"In 'The Girl You Think You See' I don't advocate women playing different roles to make men love them, but it still happens. In 'That's the Way I've Always Heard It Should Be' I'm not saying that marriage is the best thing. I'm asking, 'What is a better way?' It's a kind of resignation in a sense, but I'm not standing up for the resignation."

"I guess I'm trying to fight against the pattern established when we were children, growing up with bride dolls and having mother say marriage is your goal in life. To look for another way is hard. I'm fighting against all those patterns and I'm not sure there is a better way."

"I do want to be Mrs. somebody. It is still in me. I do want to have children. I don't see a way of raising children without them having a steady father. I want loyalty; I want to have a lot of things marriage could provide."

"Dating is a real problem. It is easier to date people who are not performers, but most of the people I meet and are attracted to are in the business. There was a guitarist who always wanted me to be the little woman in the kitchen. It's a role I can fit into quite easily and love to do. (We are eating delicious Carly-baked carrot cake as she talks.) But I was also feeling held down.

"It would be easier for me to be subordinate, to be less successful than the man I was with. Ideally it shouldn't matter; it should be that you're both good at what you do and you don't threaten the other."

With a sigh and smile, Miss Simon returns to optimism—"After the barren periods come the best"—and to career.

"James Taylor is going to tour Australia and Japan next summer. I would like to do part of that tour with him. It might well happen; we might organize something."

Havergal Brian's Music Sees Light

By RICHARD M. SUDHALTER
LONDON (UPI) — Britain's most prolific, but least-known symphony composer is "absolutely delighted" that his music is soon to be recorded for the first time—in the 97th year of his life.

The still sprightly Havergal Brian has 32 symphonies to his credit, 22 written since his 80th birthday, and Unicorn Records has announced plans to record and issue Brian's 10th and 24th symphonies.

British musicologists have expressed high regard for Brian, a onetime freelance journalist, critic, arranger and music copyist. Historian Robert Simpson of the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) termed him "a composer of the stature of (Sir Edward) Elgar." As a young man Brian was praised by both Elgar and Richard Strauss.

Havergal Brian was 78 before he heard any of his symphonies performed, and 90 before his first professional concert. That was the day Sir Adrian Boult conducted his "Gothic Symphony" at the Royal Albert Hall in London.

In addition to his symphonies, Brian has composed five operas, 114 songs and a large volume of choral music.

"In the early days he was most difficult about his music," Simpson said. "He was unwilling to send his scores to conductors, though both Sir Henry Wood and Sir Thomas Beecham wanted to conduct his work."

At his home at Shoreham, 60 miles south of London, Brian—no longer "unwilling"—said he looked forward to release of the records.

"I'm absolutely delighted with all of it," the composer told UPI, and kissed his wife Mary, a mere 77, to demonstrate his pleasure.

Ancient Greek soldiers combined garlic with pitch to help extract arrows.

REDEEM AT TEMPO

Emerson, Lake And Palmer Play Modeste Moussorgsky

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI)—Contemporary musicians sometimes go to the classics because certain compositions can be adapted to their techniques.
Boogie woogie piano players of the 1930s and 1940s borrowed from Bach and some of the top instrumentalists of the Early postwar years betrayed an indebtedness to Bartok, Stravinsky and Hindemith.
So it is not surprising to find Emerson, Lake and Palmer playing Modeste Moussorgsky's "Pictures At An Exhibition" (Cotillion ELP 66666).

listen to this performance because their verdicts are preconceived. So they are missing some good music.
But those with classical backgrounds who believe that rock is elastic will find excellent ideas in the work of Keith Emerson on organ and other keyboards, Greg Lake on guitars and Carl Palmer on drums and other percussive instruments.
"Pictures" is augmented by a "Blues Variation" by the trio and a brief spoke at Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" in "Nutcracker."
Ravi Shankar, who has endeared himself to the younger generation with his wizardry on the sitar and was among the stars in "The Concert for Bangla Desh," has added to his stature with "Concerto for Sitar and Orchestra" (Angel SF0-36806). This is indeed a magnificent opus, performed with Shankar by Andre Previn and the London Symphony Orchestra, which may well bridge the gap between rock and the classics.
Shankar belies Rudyard Kipling's Eastern, the music's orchestral tapestry is Western and there is a blending.
Tape Deck—Before making "Pictures At An Exhibition," Emerson, Lake and Palmer hit the rock charts with an imaginative album called "Tarkus." It is available on an open reel (Cotillion M 9900), an Ampex tape release, on the best speed for sound reproduction, 7 1/2 inches per second. As in "Pictures," "Tarkus" is a showpiece for instrumentalists, although there are vocals.
Among the numbers are "Iconoclast," "Stones of Years," "Battlefield," "Jeremy Bender" and "Are You Ready Eddy?"
The earliest known horse was about the size of a small dog and is called Eohippus.

The average South player would win the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs and draw trumps with three leads. Then he would lead a low heart from dummy and let East hold the trick with the nine.

An alert East would place the jack of diamonds on the table and the defense would add three diamond tricks to the heart trick already in and score 100 points.

South would probably complain about the fact that East could produce a high heart on the first lead of the suit and congratulate East on his fine play of the diamond jack. A low diamond lead would have done East no good since South would hold back his king and West would be forced to take the trick.

Someone might point out that there were nine tricks in top cards at no-trump.

How many of you readers have seen that four spades could and really should have been made?

South should let West hold the first trick. The best continuation is another club. South wins in dummy and discards a low heart. Then he plays two rounds of trumps followed by three rounds of hearts and is able to ruff the third lead.

Back to dummy with the last trump and a diamond is discarded on the 13th heart. East never got the lead!

20-Point Scorers List Down To Six

The list of 20-point per game scorers continues to shorten as the regular local and area high school basketball regular season draws to a close.

Only six area preps currently own a scoring average over the magic 20 per game level, with another five players within range of the mark.

Porta's all-state guard candidate Casey Duncheon's 24.5 mark is still the best in the area, with a close battle for runner-up honors. Havana's Bob Stinauer owns a 22.6 clip, Southwestern's Roy Taylor a 21.8 norm and Ashland's Doug Elliott is at 21.7.

Pleasant Hill's Sonny Sansom at 20.9 and Mike Williams of Bluffs at 20.8 round out the 20-point scorers.

One point below 20 is Brown County's Roger Busen with a 19.9 rate, followed by Dave Hobson of Carrollton 19.6, Danny Bess of East Pike 19.5, guard George Ross of Northwestern 19.4 and Griggsville's Brad McCulloch 19.1.

The top 35 local and area high school basketball scorers to date are:

Conference Races Should Be Cleared

The scrambled championship picture in several area conferences should be partially cleared this week, while at least two non-league affairs will demand attention in a heavy weekend of local and area basketball, the next to last round before the Class 'A' Regionals take over.

A total of 31 games are on tap in the area Friday and Saturday, including 17 conference dates, with the PMSC, Illinois Valley and Spoon River leagues receiving the most attention.

A further race in the PMSC standings depends on the outcome of Friday's Routt at Triopia battle. If Routt (6-1) wins it, the race is all over with the Rockets the champions. A Triopia (4-2) victory would leave the Trojans, Pleasant Hill, Meredosia and Bluffs all with a chance to share the crown with Routt. Elsewhere in the PMSC tonight, Chandlerville (6-12 overall and 3-3 in the league) visits Pleasant Hill (10-9 and 4-2), Perry (9-10 and 2-4) hosts Meredosia (14-6 and 4-2) and Virginia (3-14 and 1-5) entertains Bluffs (16-4 and 4-2).

Perhaps the biggest game of the season in the Illinois Valley Conference has North Greene (8-12 and 4-1) visiting league-leader Carrollton (17-3 and 5-1). Only Winchester (4-2) still has a chance to share in the top spot with IVC clubs playing eight games each. Calhoun (6-14 and 1-4) entertains Greenfield (5-10 and 0-6) Friday in another IVC test.

The Spoon River race finds leader Beardstown (7-2) idle while Macomb (4-4) visits Havana (11-7 and 4-2) and Lewistown (1-7) is at home against Rushville (15-4 and 3-4) Friday and Havana hosts Bushnell (3-3) Saturday.

Porta (18-2 and 8-0) can insure a title share tonight when the Bluejays host Morrisonville (10-12 and 5-4) in the MSM. Diverson (14-4 and 5-3) is at home against Greenfield (4-4) Saturday.

Ashland (14-5 and 5-2) hits the road to take on Chatham Glenwood (11-8 and 5-1) in the Sangamo Friday. Rochester leads the pack with a 6-1 standing.

Other league games have Barry (16-5) at West Pike in a key Pike County Conference battle tonight, Pleasant Plains (13-10 and 3-3) entertaining the Williamsville (6-12 and 2-4) Friday and Easton (3-2) hosting Virginia (1-3) Saturday in the

Plan To Enjoin Chiefs From Use Of Indian Sign

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The American Indian movement announced Thursday it plans to file suit against the Kansas City Chiefs Professional Football Club enjoining it from using Indian reference in its symbol.

A similar suit was filed against the Cleveland Indians baseball team by the Indian movement Jan. 18. That suit sought $9 million on grounds Indian symbol is "degrading, demeaning and racist."

Vernon Bellecourt, movement director, said here the suit would be filed against the Chiefs shortly and would be brought by a local chapter of the Indian movement.

Miss Cochran Gives U.S. Alpine Gold

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Barbara Cochran of Richmond, Va., twisted through a heavy snow Friday to win the women's special slalom and give the United States its first Olympic gold medal in Alpine skiing since 1952.

Miss Cochran's victory came about 2 hours after 16-year-old Anne Henning and Dianne Holm, both of Northbrook, Ill., and the other U.S. gold medalists of these 11th Winter Games, failed to win the 1,000-meter speed skating race. Miss Henning finished third, less than a quarter of a second behind winner Monika Pflug of West Germany.

Miss Cochran, whose older sister, Marilyn, fell and was disqualified in the first of two runs, had a total time of 1 minute, 31.24 seconds in giving the U.S. its third gold medal, the most since 1950, and its first in skiing since Andrea Meade Lawrence was a double gold medalist in 1952.

Gretchen Fraser won an Alpine gold for the United States in 1948 but American men have not won an Olympic Alpine race.

Miss Cochran had the fastest time of 46.05 on the first run. She then had the second fastest time of 45.19 on the second run to give a winning margin of two one-hundredths of a second over silver medalist Danielle Debernard of France.

Miss Debernard had runs of 46.08 and 45.18 for a total of 1:31.26 while bronze medalist Florence Steurer, also of France, had times of 46.57, 46.12-1:32.69.

Just moments after Miss Cochran flashed across the finish on her second run, she was mobbed by her jubilant teammates who carried her on their shoulders to get her gold.

Miss Pflug was timed in 1:31.40 in winning the 1,000 meters speed skating. Silver medalist Atje Keulen-Deels was clocked in 1:31.61 to 1:31.62 for Miss Henning.

Miss Holm, who won the

Improved IC Hosts Culver After 4th

Culver-Stockton College, which had no trouble with the Illinois College cagers in a match at Canton, Mo., last month, is a bit concerned about the return engagement in I.C. Memorial Gymnasium at 8 o'clock tonight. The Blueboys have a reputation for good play on their own boards, and their showing in an 85-80 overtime victory over Greenville Tuesday may indicate that Coach Bill Merris finally has come up with the winning formula.

The two Greenville contests resulted in a 24-point improvement for the Blueboys in just two weeks. Greenville won by 19 at home Jan. 25, then lost here Tuesday by 5.

Culver-Stockton liked I.C. by 29 there Jan. 13. Just a little more improvement by the hosts, or any dropoff by the visitors, could be enough to swing tonight's tilt to the Blueboys, who are now 3-12.

Of course, Merris can't really expect another performance out of big center Terry Woodring like the one he turned in Tuesday. He established team season highs for scoring, field goals, and rebounds, and his 24 career recoveries missed the all-time Illinois College record by just one. The mark of 25 was established by Charlie Martin just a few years ago.

Woodring's usual replacement, sophomore Steve McGrew, has about recovered from a leg injury which kept him out of a pair of games and slowed him down in several others. He didn't see much playing time Tuesday, however, and can't expect much tonight if Woodring takes up where he left off with deft shooting from the top of the key and strong charges to the hoop off his pivot post.

A believer that you don't break up a winning combination, Merris probably will go with the same starting lineup tonight as Tuesday. That would put veteran Don Steers and freshman Dan Little in the front line with Woodring, and Jack Messmore and Dennis Wright at guard.

There will not be a junior varsity contest preceding the game tonight.

Hot Bradley Rips Drake 85-69

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Bradley shot 65 per cent from the floor and converted 19 of 20 free throws Thursday to post an 85-69 Missouri Valley Conference basketball victory over Drake University.

Bradley took a commanding 51-40 lead early in the second half and held the lead for the rest of the contest.

The winners were paced by senior guard Sam Simmons, who pumped in 25 points. Dave Langston netted 21 for Drake.

Bradley stands 5-5 in the conference, while Drake slipped to 2-6.

JHS Faces Toughies, Routt After Title

Jacks Meet Eisenhower And Lincoln

By BUFORD GREENE
Sports Editor

Jacksonville High eyes its toughest weekend of the basketball regular season, and Routt High can end a long PMSC Conference drought with a victory in the highlights of the local high school cage weekend.

The Crimson, with a mathematical but slim chance left to take the Capitol Conference crown, entertain a strong Decatur Eisenhower outfit tonight in the next to last JHS home game of the year. Then it gets even tougher, as Jacksonville visits state-ranked Lincoln Saturday evening.

Routt will be seeking a repeat of an earlier victory over arch-rival Triopia at Concord tonight when the Rockets go for a rare clear-cut PMSC Conference crown.

Illinois School for the Deaf also faces a weekend twinbill. The Tigers, who stand 2-15 on losing spell, visit Waverly tonight. The Scotties are 1-18 for the campaign with a 15-game losing streak. Saturday night ISD entertains Payson in another non-conference test.

Jacksonville High is currently 13-6 on the year following a split last weekend, and is 7-4 in the Capitol Conference, trailing Southeast's 8-1 and Eisenhower's 8-2. Southeast plays only 12 league games to 14 by JHS and Eisenhower, leaving the Crimson with a mathematical shot at reaching the top rung.

Eisenhower, 12-5 on the year, has lost only to top-ranked Thornridge, Robinson, Southeast twice and to Alton last week, 69-64, in Decatur.

Coach Bob Witt opens with 6-1 junior Larry Jarrett and 5-10 junior Phil Taylor at forwards, 6-5 junior Sturgis Jones at center and 5-11 junior Norman Coe and 5-11 senior Bryan Peters at guards. Jones and Peters are averaging 17 points per game, with Jones picking off 14 rebounds per outing.

With only one letterman (Peters) back from last year's club, Witt is quite pleased with his team's play this year. "This has been a very pleasing year for us. The kids have done an excellent job. The night we beat Jacksonville earlier this year we played very well, although we lost a big lead. We still have a shot at the conference, but we have to win the rest of them."

The Lincoln Railsplitters are 19-3 on the year and are currently rated third in the UPI poll and fourth in the AP list. The lone loss was 59-53 to Springfield High after Lincoln blew leads of 14-0, 18-1 and 22-7.

Railsplitter coach Duncan Reid plans to start 6-6 junior Tim Bushell and 6-0 junior Mike Swingle at forwards, 6-8 junior Norman Cook at center and 6-6 senior Scott Betzelberger and 5-10 junior Mike Schneider at guards. First off the bench are 6-5 senior Herb Goren, 6-0 senior Joe Foster and 6-4 junior John Bunner.

"We have seen Jacksonville play three times," says Reid. "They were very impressive in two of them and against Launier they got in foul trouble. Jacksonville is probably as strong now as they have been all year. They were hurt early this week. "The other players enjoyed Ron's night as much as he did. Several of the players did an outstanding job of jelling him the ball. He worked for it and they got it to him."

Routt enters tonight's contest, the Rockets' final loop test of the season, with an 11-9 card and stands 6-1 in the PMSC list. A victory over Triopia, 9-12 overall and 4-2 in the league, would give the Rockets the outright crown, while a loss would leave the race open for Triopia, Pleasant Hill, Meredosia and Bluffs, all 4-2 in the conference, with a chance to share the top spot.

Routt ended a long losing streak to Triopia with a 40-38 victory over the Trojans in the semi-finals of the PMSC Conference Tournament in January, coming back from a big early deficit.

According to the best information available, Routt has not defeated Triopia in a regular season game since 1961 and the recent Rocket triumph over the Trojans was the first in the 11 interim years.

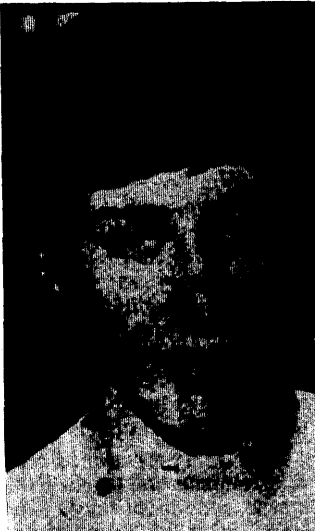

"I think Triopia may have been looking ahead to us in their recent games," says Rocket coach Gale Thoroman, who will open with his usual unit. "They know they have to win their last three games to break even in the regular season. I expect a game much like our first meeting, as we believe to be a school regular both play control offense and concentrate on defense."

Concerning Fairfield's game against Springfield, which is believed to be a school regular and season record, Long commented

Prep Spotlight

Duane Dawdy

Sam Dean

Jack Schaddel

Steve Woodrum

Augie Reznicek

Mike Roseberry

Today's Prep Spotlight features performers from North Greene, Pleasant Plains, Northwestern and Pittsfield.

Duane Dawdy and Sam Dean are two of the steady players this year for the North Greene club that owns an 8-12 standing. Dawdy, a 5-10 senior letterman, has ten of 20 games in double figures with a high of 21 points in victory over Greenfield. Dean, a 6-1 senior non-letterman, has hit twin figures eight times this season with 16 points in win over Northwestern in first game of year his best.

Jack Schaddel and Steve Woodrum are two of the strong rebounders who have sparked Pleasant Plains to a 13-10 card. Schaddel, a 5-11 senior leaper, is also averaging 12.3 points a game with a 31-point explosion in big win over Mason City his one-game best. Schaddel has scored in double figures in 15 of 21 tries this season. Woodrum, also a 5-11 senior, has been in double digits eight times this year, with 15 in the Mason City tilt his tops.

Augie Reznicek, a 5-9 senior non-letterman, has handled the ball-handling chores for Northwestern High school this season, including Tuesday's upset over Auburn. Reznicek has had nine outings result in double figure scoring, with 17 in loss to Kincaid his best.

Mike Roseberry has been a consistent scorer for the Pittsfield Saukees the second half of the season. Roseberry, a 6-0 senior, has gained double figures four times in the last half, including 15 in loss to Mendon Unity.

AT THE MOMENT, it is Walter Kennedy, center, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, who is in the spotlight as the Senate looks into the proposed merger between the NBA and its only competitor, the American Basketball Association. But the results of the Senate inquiry will have a large impact on two existing monopolies, major league baseball, whose commissioner is Bowie Kuhn, left, and the National Football League, headed by commissioner Pete Rozelle.

NBA's Kennedy: Man Up A Tree

(Second of Three Parts.)
By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If you are a professional basketball player or a member of Congress or a private citizen concerned with a modicum of justice, you should be interested in some of the testimony of J. Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, in three situations.

The situations involve testimony during the recent hearing for proposed merger between the NBA and the American Basketball Association, pretrial depositions in the Spencer Haywood case and in the Connie Hawkins case.

It reveals a double standard of ethics and a cavalier attitude toward an individual's (read: "player's") rights. Kennedy's position and defenses are little different from those of his peers, Bowie Kuhn in baseball and Pete Rozelle in football, in regard to protecting the self-interest of owners.

Most recently, Kennedy testified at the Senate Anti-Trust subcommittee hearings. Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., brought up information pertaining to the owners of the Cincinnati Royals, Jerry and Max Jacobs. Steiger charged that the Jacobses' history "is replete with reports of business associations with underworld and organized crime figures." Steiger had eight exhibits to back him up.

The Jacobses own a concession empire known as Emprise Corp. and do business with 40 per cent of the teams in basketball, football, baseball and hockey. In fact, they have loaned millions of dollars to teams. Now, since it is public knowledge that the Jacobses have been ordered never to do business in Arkansas and New Mexico by the state legislatures and racing commissions, and have been indicted in California on felony charges, why haven't they been investigated by the establishment of team sports before this?

Steiger said, "It is difficult for me to equate the righteous demand that a Joe Namath dispose of his holdings in a saloon where hoods frequent or Denny McLain interrupt his baseball career for doing business with gamblers and yet there is no apparent harm in the (Jacobses) having (alleged) criminal associations with criminals."

When Steiger, several months ago, informed Kennedy of the Jacobs situation, Kennedy said, he called Max Jacobs. "Jacobs supplied me with certain information. The information was satisfactory," said Kennedy.

Sen. Sam Ervin, subcommittee chairman, asked if Kennedy would treat a player in the same manner (that is, ask the man if he is guilty or not, have the man reply, "Not guilty," and end the investigation)?

"I think I would treat a player in the same manner," said Kennedy.

In fact, he would not. Did not take the Connie Hawkins case. Hawkins had been blacklisted by the NBA for being an alleged intermediary with gamblers in the college fixing scandals of 1961. Hawkins eventually sued. In pretrial depositions, Kennedy was asked by Hawkins' lawyer, Mrs. Rose Litman, if Kennedy had in fact inquired whether Hawkins had accepted five hundred dollars one of the gamblers had allegedly offered him.

Kennedy: "No."

Mrs. Litman: "Did you consider it to be of any importance?"

Kennedy: "Not at that point." Kennedy also admitted that he never talked to Hawkins, never found out that Hawkins allegedly introduced gamblers to but one college player (and that college player denied Hawkins was involved). Hawkins' case was settled out of court. He was admitted in 1969 to the NBA and received a $1 million-plus settlement.

Turn to the Spencer Haywood case. Haywood had become the first player to drop out of college before his class graduated and signed with the pros (Denver of the ABA). Now, in February, 1971, Haywood was suing the NBA, which was refusing him legal rights to play. (Haywood had left Denver, who, he said, had broken their contract, and signed with Seattle of the NBA.) Some bits of Kennedy testimony in pretrial depositions:

In relation to a merger, Kennedy says that there would still be a chance for a player to use a bargaining wedge. He suggested the Harlem Globetrotters. Frank Rothman, Seattle counsel: "Is that a viable alternative for a white player, as far as you are concerned?"

Kennedy: "It is a reasonable possibility that a white basketball player could play with the Harlem Globetrotters."

Somewhere else, Kennedy says that he believes a merger will "not appreciably" reduce high salaries being paid to players, would "not substantially" decrease the large bonuses to college players that have been created by the two leagues. He said he made no surveys to see how the merger so effected pro football.

In discussing the elements of the reserve clause, it was established that a player signs a contract for one year, plays out his option the next. Now, in year three, what? Can he try to go to another team in his league?

Kennedy: "I have never been faced by that problem. I have no position. When I approach that problem, if it is a problem, I will make a ruling."

Lawyer: "But Commissioner, that is a problem when a man puts a signature to the paper. He has a right to know what the position of the NBA is with respect to his contract. It is beyond my belief that the NBA does not know with 200 contracts in existence, nor is willing to say, what (the contract interpretation is). I think it is preposterous."

The case was settled out of court in Haywood's favor.

Dolph Stresses Need Of Merger

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The kid couldn't hold back any longer.

He began to cry. Jack Dolph, the ABA commissioner, was sitting on the other side of the desk when all this happened and upon seeing the youngster weep he suddenly discovered a dry, tight sensation in his own throat, too.

The boy, 21 or so, was a college basketball player and a good one. So good he felt he could jump right in and play with the pros. That, plus economic circumstances, were what prompted him to come see Jack Dolph.

He was hoping to be signed by one of the ABA clubs as a "hardship" case even though he was still in college, and normally the pros don't dip into the school ranks for talent.

The boy had come to Dolph's 42nd floor downtown office with a lawyer, and the commissioner was now asking the kid a few basic questions.

Like how many hours college credit did he have? What particular courses was he taking?

Perfectly simple questions.

Yet somehow they triggered terribly painful recollections inside the boy and that's when the tears came.

Jack Dolph, as the saying goes, has been around the block. He didn't come with the morning milk. He has put in 19 years in the rough, tough TV industry and 2 1/2 more in pro basketball, which isn't exactly a rose garden either.

He's not a soft touch by any means but the kid's plight moved him, maybe even more than the tears.

"This boy should never have been on a college campus," says Dolph. "He was completely unprepared for college. When he began recounting his inadequacy in school, the frustrations, the taunts of his schoolmates over his inability to keep up with them, it simply became too much for him to convey. Why he couldn't even remember the courses he was taking. He sat right there in that chair and cried."

The episode moved Dolph very deeply.

"What concerned me most," he says in an extraordinarily honest admission for a league commissioner, "is that the pros were getting into the 'body business.' This boy was recruited by his college, now he was going to be recruited by the pros and there was little concern about anything else except his size, his quickness and his animal instinct. Here were two leagues fighting over this boy's body. His lawyer said he should be trying to play professional basketball instead of going to college and I couldn't agree more."

That doesn't mean Dolph encourages these "hardship" applications.

"I try to talk them into not applying," he says. "For every one boy who might possibly benefit, there are 50 others who should stay in college."

All this becomes particularly pertinent because for the first time ever the ABA has decided to permit each of its 11 clubs to draft one undergraduate every five rounds at its next season later this month.

Dolph feels this new procedure can eliminate the "hardship draft" entirely and make for a more orderly method of choosing college players in "special circumstances."

Critics of the plan simply feel this is the ABA's way of signing more players while they are still in college.

To that Dolph says: "The ABA specifically and basketball in general are fighting for survival and to survive you must have ballplayers. For the ABA to survive, it must sign the players. We have whetted the appetites of people in North Carolina, Colorado, Utah, Texas, Kentucky and Florida. These people never had major league professional basketball before and now there's a chance it may be taken away from them. If, as some claim, a merger between our league and the NBA is as much as two years away, there are cities in this country who will lose their franchises—in both leagues."

Under Dolph's leadership, the ABA has emerged from something of a bush league to a big league. So far none of the ABA clubs have made money but that isn't Dolph's fault. He was hired to get the ABA on TV and he did. To a degree, anyway.

Dolph knows there will be a merger eventually. He isn't worried about what will happen to him then and he shouldn't be because good executive help is hard to come by today.

"I'm not insecure about my future," he says. "Certainly I would like to remain in basketball and be the commissioner when the two leagues merge, but it's totally appropriate that Walter Kennedy (the NBA's head man) be the commissioner at that time. With the experience he has shown, that's only logical."

I would welcome the opportunity to work with Walter Kennedy. I believe I could learn a lot."

NEW YORK (NEA) — A rose by any other name, quoth Shakespeare, smells as sweet. It seems to be that way for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, though it was hardly that way for Muhammad Ali.

Both Abdul-Jabbar and Ali changed their names after they had reached athletic heights. Abdul-Jabbar, formerly known as Lewis Ferdinand Alcinder Jr., switched patronyms last summer. Since then, newspapers, broadcasters, opposing players and fans have generally adopted the change.

It was hardly that way when Cassius Marcellus Clay Jr. told the world that he had become, right before their very eyes, Muhammad Ali.

"I think," said Abdul-Jabbar, "that Clay's transition was harder because he was so much more controversial, what with his stand on the war."

Ali changed his name at the same time, in 1967, that he announced he was a Black Muslim. This was scary for the Establishment press. The Muslims appeared an awesome dark threat to conventional ways of life. (The threat has since diminished a great deal, with the growth of the Black Panthers.) So cynicism and a kind of fear kept many from calling Ali Ali.

Not everyone was pleased or noncommittal about Abdul-Jabbar's change, either. In fact, Abdul-Jabbar's father said, "Well, I didn't want him to change the name. But he is mature and intelligent. It wasn't a rash decision. And he had become a devout Muslim. He was a devout Catholic when he was younger. But I still call him Lewis. It's hard to change after some 20 years."

Both Ali and Abdul-Jabbar said that they were shucking their original appellations because they were "slave-given names." Both wanted a return to their African extractions. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (which translates from the Arabic as "generous" and "servant of Allah") and "powerful" emphasizes, however, that he is a member of the Islamic faith, and is not part of the American "Black Muslim" movement.

Ali and Abdul-Jabbar have probably made the greatest impression on the public with their change of names. Yet they are among scores and scores of athletes, entertainers, authors and political leaders who have changed their names. The reasons are many-fold — for easier headline purposes, for more enticing marquee lettering, to avoid religious prejudice, to get a boxing license when underage, to stay one step ahead of the cops.

Some baseball players include: Connie Mack (Cornelius McGillicuddy), Billy Martin (Alfred Manuel Pessano), Al Simmons (Szymanski), Cass Michaels (Kwiatkowski), Eddie Lopat (Lopatynski), Johnny Pesky (Paveskovitch), Max Carey (Maximilian Carnarius), Pete Gray (Wysner), Andy Carey (Nordstrom).

Some champion boxers include: Jack Sharkey (Zukaskas), Joe Louis (Joe Louis Barrow), Battling Levinsky (Barney Lebowitz), Rocky Marciano (Rocco Marchegiano), Joey Maxim (Berardinelli), Tony Zale (Zaleski), Rocky Graziano (Barbella), Sugar Ray Robinson (Walker Smith), Battling Siki (Louis Phal), Jersey Joe Walcott (Arnold Cream), Barney Ross (Rosofsky), Benny Leonard (Leiner), Beau Jack (Sidney Walker), Willie Pep (Papaleo).

World leaders: David Ben-Gurion (Green), Tito (Josip Brozovich), Stalin (Dzhughashvili), Trotsky (Bronstein), Lenin (Ulyanov), Buddha (Prince Siddhartha), Haile Selassie (Ras Tafari Makonnen).

Entertainers: Jack Benny (Benjamin Kubelsky), George Burns (Nathan Birnbaum), Doris Day (von Kappelhoff), Kirk Douglas (Issur Danielovitch), Tony Curtis (Bernard Schwartz), John Wayne (Marion Michael Morrison), Ringo Starr (Richard Starkey), Fred Astaire (Austerlitz), Cyd Charisse (Tula Finklea), Roy Rogers (Leonard Slye), Richard Burton (Jenkins), Boris Karloff (Pratt), W. C. Fields (Dukerfield), Judy Garland (Frances Gumm), Marilyn Monroe (Norma Jean Mortenson).

Olympic Briefs

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Girl-watchers at the 11th Winter Olympic Games have added the name of Ludmilla Titova, Soviet speed skater, to their Top Ten list.

Ludmilla, 1966 gold medalist in the 500 meters and a bronze medalist here, is a 5-foot-8, 130-pound engineer from Moscow with classic features and green eyes.

She proved a hit at the interview following the 500-meter race Thursday, saying of the winner, Anne Henning:

"I admire her greatly for her great achievement. At 16, she is certain to improve on her world record."

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Jean Scott, pretty blonde British figure skater, was one of the many Winter Olympics competitors shopping for Japanese dolls in the athletes' village.

"I don't really want a doll," she said, "but a woman wrote to me in Scotland and asked me to get her one. I had never heard of her before, but I don't like to refuse a request. I don't suppose she'll ever get a chance to come to Japan."

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — One Japanese woman, who went to the Olympic Village to take pictures of foreign athletes and officials, found her role reversed Thursday and easily became a target of news photographers from abroad.

The woman held a camera in one hand and supported a pet dog with the other. She was carrying the dog, a white spitz, on her back.

"My pet will get dirty otherwise," she said.

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Avery Brundage was making a tour of the press center here when he ran into pretty Suzy Chaffee, the former U.S. skier who is conducting a one-woman campaign to democratize the International Olympic Committee.

"I suppose you read the papers this morning," Miss Chaffee said to the IOC president, referring to an account of her crusade for a 10-point Olympic overhaul.

"Yes," replied Brundage, "but if you perjured yourself as you said in the article, why didn't you return your medals?"

"I never won any medals, Mr. Brundage," Suzy replied. "Mainly, I'm interested in not perjuring my principles."

Brundage smiled—and moved on.

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Hot blueberry juice, flown in from Norway, was served to Norwegian runners in the 50-kilometer cross-country ski race. Stations to pass out hot drinks to the competitors in the grueling race are set up along the route.

Paal Tyldum of Norway won the race. Magne Myrmo, also of Norway, was second.

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Russia's Vyacheslav Vedenin, third-place winner in the 50-kilometer cross-country ski race Thursday, probably is the hardest man to get direct quotes from immediately after the race.

The 30-year-old Red Army lieutenant refused to meet newsmen and photographers and elbowed his way out of the field, where a large group of journalists had been waiting for him.

"He wouldn't speak out here to you gentlemen even when he wins a gold medal," an official said.

Vedenin took first place in the 30-kilometer cross-country last Friday but withheld comment until the Soviet Olympic delegation called a news conference for him at the press center about four hours after the race.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Danny Whelan, gray-haired team trainer and handyman, is alone in the New York Knicks' locker room in Madison Square Garden. It is 10:30 a.m. The room, with greenish carpet and light wood lockers built into the wall, is clean and tidy. Stools have been turned upside down and placed on the low shelf of each locker. Practice begins in half an hour. At 1 o'clock, the team will board a bus to the airport for an away game tomorrow.

Whelan is packing the blue traveling uniforms. Jerry Lucas is the first player in. He wears a tawny suede jacket, brown corduroy bellbottoms, work shoes.

"Stayed up late to see you on the Johnny Carson Show last night," said Whelan. "Disgusting."

"Yeah," said Lucas. He had come on at the end of the show. "I got two minutes of air time. In between 32 commercials. They had promised me 14 minutes. I couldn't do my stuff in two minutes. And I didn't want to talk."

Lucas has some tricks. One is taking names from the telephone book and changing them into words and sentences.

"I would never go on that show," said Whelan. "The nerve. You should've gone around the corner to the Cavett Show. I woulda."

The talk is low. Dave DeBusschere comes in.

"I fell asleep, Luke, how'd ya do last night?"

"I did the Casper the Ghost act."

"Benched?" asked DeBusschere.

"Almost. Got two minutes." Lucas shakes his head. DeBusschere shakes his head.

"I saw films of that Ohio State-Minnesota fight," said DeBusschere, as rookie Dean Meminger and Eddie Miles stroll in.

"They were sure dukin' it, weren't they?" says Meminger, who sports a sparse goatee.

"See that one guy knee the other?" asks DeBusschere. "These college kids are all hepped up for the game," says Meminger. "They only play one or two a week. The coach says, 'Don't you guys take nothin' from the other guys.'"

"They'd go out there like bulls and see red," says Miles. Phil Jackson walks in. "The announcer said that one guy spit on the guy on the floor. I didn't see that."

"You can't see everything on television," says Miles. Jackson sits down. Looks over the New York Times, then throws the paper across the room at the wastebasket. The paper flutters all over the floor. A couple of guys laugh.

"A lotta times it's the referees' fault," says DeBusschere. "Especially homers on the road. They call these terrible charging fouls." In jock strap, he impersonates a referee calling a charging foul — slapping his right hand behind his neck, pointing with left hand, and skipping across the floor.

"They're ruining the game with that stuff," said Meminger. "In college once a guy called that on me," said DeBusschere. "Get your hand up. Get your hand up. I didn't foul him."

"I said, 'I'm not getting my hand up,'" Meminger laughed.

"How come, Luke, they didn't give you no time last night?" asks Jackson.

"Arrgh," says Lucas, diligently taping his ankles. "After the show I did my tricks for 'em. Great, they said, great. The greatest stuff we've ever seen. Come back next week. I told 'em to forget it."

"Right," said Whelan. "The Cavett Show's the answer."

"Bradley not here yet?" says Coach Red Holzman, momentarily extracting the butt of a thin cigar from his mouth as he walks in.

Families Remain Proud Of Effort By U.S. Skaters

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP)—Bronze meant almost as much as gold Thursday night to Sally and Tom Henning, as their sister Anne, 16, came off a disappointing start to hold on for third place and a bronze medal in the women's 1,000-meter speed-skating event of the Winter Olympics.

"She got the bronze, she got the bronze," Sally, 14, shouted to a living room of friends and neighbors gathered at the Henning home in Northbrook, the Fastest Town on Skates.

"That even makes me more happy than last night," she added. "When I heard she had missed her chance for a gold, I just thought she wasn't going to get a medal at all, and I was really disappointed."

Anne finished with a time of 1:31.62, breaking the old Olympic record.

She already had a gold medal going into Thursday night's event at Sapporo, Japan, as did 20-year-old Dianne Holum.

Dianne won the 1,500-meter women's speed-skating event Tuesday night and Anne got her gold medal in the women's 500-meter Wednesday.

Dianne finished sixth in the 1,000-meter with a time of 1:32.51, like Anne, under the Old Olympic record of 1:32.60 set at Grenoble in 1968.

Dianne's skating partner lost her armband before the start of the race, and the race was delayed for several minutes.

Dianne's sister and brother, at home in Northbrook, said the delay probably cost Dianne a medal.

"It also could have been the condition of the ice or a bunch of other things," said Eddie Holum, 14, who heard the results at the home of a neighbor.

"She has done much better times."

"We're really proud of her for the gold," Patricia said.

"That, in itself, is a once in a lifetime thing."

Both the Henning and Holum children plan to be at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport early Monday morning to welcome home Northbrook's gold medalists.

Their parents have been in Japan for the Winter Games.

A car caravan will leave Northbrook in time to meet the girls at the airport and will return them to the northern Chicago suburb for a welcome-home party.

Seeks 'Unbiased' Big Ten Situation

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Dr. Clifton R. Wharton Jr., black president of Michigan State University, has asked for two Big Ten meetings "to assure equal and unbiased treatment" of black athletes and staff members in the conference.

Wharton made his statement Thursday after three black administrators at MSU contended the Minnesota-Ohio State basketball clash had "racial overtones" and asked for improvement of the status of black athletes in the Big Ten.

The three, headed by Dr. Robert L. Green, director of the MSU Center for Urban Affairs, also said in a letter to Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke that there were not enough black officials in the conference.

No later than this fall, they said, black officials should be hired and used in every athletic event sanctioned by the Big Ten.

"The serious issues which have been raised require prompt attention in order to clear the air and provide a means for any corrective action," Wharton said.

Wharton said he is asking Dr. John Fuzak, MSU faculty representative to the Big Ten, to discuss the issues fully at the March 6-8 conference meeting in Chicago.

"I am also urging a meeting of the Big Ten presidents as soon as possible after that meeting to hear the recommendations of the athletic directors and faculty representatives to consider the proper steps to bring this matter to a satisfactory conclusion," Wharton said.

Wharton added that an MSU committee against discrimination is reviewing its athletic department "to uncover and eliminate any patterns of discrimination or unequal treatment which might exist."

ICE ARENA PLANNED

Patterson, Bonavena Clash Friday

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, the former two-time heavyweight champion of the world, and bruising Oscar Bonavena of Argentina will meet Friday night in the first big fight of the year at Madison Square Garden.

Both are hoping that the scheduled 10-rounder will be a big step toward a shot at heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.

The 37-year-old Patterson has said he will have to win impressively to consider himself ready for Frazier. But Frazier has said all Patterson needs to do is beat Bonavena to earn another shot at the title.

Bonavena, 29, has fought Frazier twice, losing 10 and 15-round decisions. The "tough Argentine" was not knocked down in the 25 rounds and in the 10-rounder, he had Frazier on the floor twice.

Patterson is guaranteed $60,000 against 30 per cent of the live gate while Bonavena is guaranteed $60,000 against 25 per cent.

Patterson, ranked as the No. 5 heavyweight contender by the World Boxing Association and No. 6 by Ring Magazine, has a record of 54-7-1, with 39 knockouts. He has won his last seven fights, six last year.

Bonavena, ranked fourth by the WBA and by Ring, has a 47-71 record, with 32 knockouts.

The fight, originally scheduled for January, 1971, has been postponed four times because of hand injuries to Bonavena.

Brooks Sees 4th In Row For Orioles

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
"I think we will win again," Brooks Robinson said during one of his visits to New York.

Brooks is the man who carries the golden glove around third base for the Baltimore Orioles, who soon will be basing in the warm Miami sun as the first preparation for the defense of their American League baseball championship.

The Orioles have won the AL pennant the last three years and even though they were beaten by the Pittsburgh Pirates in the World Series last October, the Birds still must be considered the best team in baseball, if consistency means anything.

"We will still have a powerful team, even though we have traded Frank Robinson to the Los Angeles Dodgers," Brooks continued.

"In Bobby Grich and Don Baylor we have two rising young stars who are ready and would be playing regularly this year with any other team."

"You watch, both Grich and Baylor probably will get to bat about 250 times each. That's the way Manager Earl Weaver operates. He works the new players in gradually."

"When you play for a man for more than three years you get to see how he operates and Earl has done his job better than anyone realizes. You must be on the team to appreciate him."

"Earl worked Merv Rettenmund in gradually, getting him in 95 games in his first full year as manager in 1969. The next year Merv played more and he was considered a regular last season. Weaver will handle Grich and Baylor the same way."

Rettenmund went to bat 190 times in '69, then got up 338 times in 1970 when he hit .322 to lead the team. Last year the outfielder was up 491 times in 141 games and batted .318.

Grich is a 6-foot-2 native of Muskegon, Mich., now living in Long Beach, Calif., who has starred for Rochester in the International League the last two seasons. He is a fine shortstop but doesn't surprise if Weaver gives him some action at second base, and also in the outfield. Grich just turned 23.

Last year, Grich batted .300 with nine hits in 30 attempts in seven games with the Orioles. In the field he handled all of 42 chances without an error.

With such outfielders as Frank Robinson, Paul Blair, Dor. Buford and Rettenmund available last year, Baylor had little chance with Baltimore. A native of Austin, Tex., he will be 23 next June. At Rochester in 1970, Baylor was considered the best prospect in the International League. He hit .327 with 22 homers. He is 6-foot-1 and, like Grich, bats right handed.

"There is no doubt about our pitching," says Brooks Robinson.

The American League East Latters know all about pitchers Dave McNally, Jim Palmer, Pat Dobson and Mike Cuellar. Each won 20 or more games and combined they completed 70 games while the Orioles were winning 101 times.

Millikin Hangs On To Win 91-86

NAPERVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Millikin College had a poor showing Thursday night in the second half hitting for only 21 per cent from the floor but hung on for a 91-86 basketball victory over North Central.

Millikin worked to a 55-47 halftime advantage, but then went cold scoring only 36 points in the final stanza of the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin game.

Dan Parker led the winning attack with 27 points while North Central's Steve Hoefft had 22.

Millikin is now 4-10 in the conference and 7-10 overall while North Central stands at 1-10 in the CCIW and 6-14 overall.

Minnesota Regents Challenge Action

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Two University of Minnesota regents questioned Thursday the Big Ten's jurisdictional authority to suspend Gopher basketball players Ron Behagen and Corky Taylor for their part in a brawl with Ohio State Jan. 25.

Elmer L. Andersen, chairman of the regents and a former Minnesota governor, said during a regents' committee meeting that Big Ten commissioner Wayne Duke "doesn't appear to have the authority to suspend our players."

Duke announced Jan. 28 that the Big Ten and the university acted jointly in suspending Behagen and Taylor for the rest of the season.

However, an aide to Malcolm Moos, university president, said the players "were suspended by the Big Ten commissioner with the understanding that the university would concur."

The university's Twin Cities Assembly on Intercollegiate Athletics has since undertaken an investigation into the brawl, which resulted in the hospitalization of three Ohio State players.

Regent Lyman Brink of Hall County suggested that the regents ask Duke to lift the suspensions.

Dr. Moos told the regents' assembly committee the central issue is one of "due process."

"Certainly, in my opinion, they were not accorded due process," said Dr. Moos. "I think it's wrong that these two young men be required to carry the bull load of this issue. I do hope we can turn this around to get the true facts."

The assembly committee is composed of businessmen, students and faculty to regulate athletic policies at the university. The aide to Dr. Moos said some preliminary conclusions have been made, but they will not be made public until a complete report is finished.

Regent Fred Hughes of St. Cloud said that if the board is asked to act on the issue, "I want to personally talk to the people involved."

Edgar Pillow, a staff member of the St. Paul Urban League, and Gleason Glover, executive director of the Minneapolis Urban League, appeared before the regents' committee and urged that every precaution be taken that the two players "be given due process."

"These two men are being seen as villains in a situation in which we are all in some way to blame," Glover said. "They are not being given a fair chance."

Regents met private with Moos Thursday night and it was expected that an announcement will be made Friday whether they will take action on the suspensions.

The appointments of Maurice "Mo" Forte as an assistant football coach and Bob Geary as an assistant athletic director also are to be approved.

Rosburg Takes Lead In Hope

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Bob Rosburg, a 45-year-old veteran who hasn't won in more than a decade, fashioned a three-under-par 69 Thursday and took full possession of first place in the second round of the $145,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Rosburg, a former PGA National champion, had a 36-hole total of 135, nine under par after two days of play in this unique, 90-hole event.

He was one stroke ahead of youthful Jerry Heard, who shared the first-day lead with Rosburg and had a second-round 70.

Arnold Palmer, the 42-year-old millionaire who won this tournament last year, moved into solid contention with a 68 for 137—just two strokes off the pace with three rounds to go.

Palmer was tied with little Deane Beman, who had a seven-under-par 65 at Indian Wells—one of four desert courses being played in this tournament.

Rosburg played at Bermuda Dunes, heard at La Quinta and Palmer at El Dorado.

Canadian George Knudson, who played at Indian Wells, was next with a second consecutive 69 for 138.

The big group at 139 included little Chi Chi Rodriguez, Billy Casper, Art Wall, Lionel Hebert, Tommy Aaron and Chuck Courtney. Hebert had a 66, Casper 68, Aaron 69, Rodriguez 71 and Courtney 72.

Jack Nicklaus slipped to a par 72 and 140. Lee Trevino managed a struggling 71 and was far off the pace at 147.

Rosburg, who said he was playing "The best I have in the last 15 years," again dominated the par threes.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the concerns of Americans with a love for what they feel is the traditional way of life is the fact that farming has taken on the corporate form. How sad, they say, that the family farm is disappearing.

Lost along with it, they fear, are the wholesome qualities of a strong family life, thrift, independence, individuality, responsibility, hard work and a respect for property and person.

The major flaw in this point of view is that it assumes corporate farms and family farms are the antithesis of each other. They aren't. Some 75 per cent of corporate farms are family owned.

Moreover, according to a man who should know, these fears are partially based on an incorrect assumption: that the important factor is the family farm when in reality it is the farm family.

Those virtues, according to Walter Penn, are not lost because of the corporate form, which really is evidence only of a more stable, businesslike operation, partially necessitated by the fact that a 320-acre Iowa farm, for example, might have assets of $225,000.

Farm families change, of course, says Penn. But they remain constant too. Those old virtues remain. A family farm that incorporates does not suddenly involve a farm family of employees and executives. The old relationship remains.

Penn, who was born on a farm and who is now responsible for close to $800 million in farm loans, has watched closely the changes that have occurred in the past 30 years or so and is far more impressed than disappointed.

As vice president of Equitable Life Assurance Society he has found a tremendous source of investment—steady, reliable, good collateral. Because of the depression of the 1930s, Equitable became the reluctant owner of 8,000 farms by 1940. It owns none now.

Moreover, farm loans involve almost no defaults. Farm families pay back steadily, and many of the farms once heavily mortgaged are now free and clear of debt. Of U.S. farmland worth $220 billion, only $30 billion is mortgaged.

He maintains that the future of farming as a solid, businesslike operation with profit potential is excellent. And Prudential Insurance must think so too because it has $1.4 billion invested in farm loans.

During the evolution of the factory farm, which is really what many people have in mind when they refer to the corporate farm, a discovery was made: Bigness reaches a point of diminishing returns.

Once it was thought that the more acreage under cultivation the greater the economies of volume. But more than a few huge ventures have learned that this isn't always so.

During recent years Penn has watched corporate farms of 5,000 to 10,000 acres run into severe problems of inefficiency that in effect destroyed them. Some have since been dissolved.

"There is a limit to how much land can be operated efficiently," he says. "A farmer must have an interest in the land, especially an equity interest; he can't merely be an employee working regular hours."

A farmer, he maintains, is successful because of the amount of extra effort he is willing to put into his job, work that a paid employee of a large farm wouldn't be inclined to use, at least without added compensation.

"A farmer with an interest in the land, because he owns it or owns the crop, will do the work when it has to be done. What time it takes to do the job is made available."

Nevertheless, he feels, today's farmer lives a better life than did his father. He doesn't work as hard, and he enjoys more benefits. He is more efficient and a better businessman, an opinion buttressed by statistics showing three farmers can now feed 100 people.

The farm family, Penn maintains, is not just a great investment. "It is the backbone of American agriculture." Still,

Fleet Owners Like Self-Insurance Plan

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Insurance is a way of modern life but some automotive fleet owners seem to be better off without it.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. and its subsidiary, Econocar, an auto rental firm, say they probably saved more than $1 million in 1971 by setting up their own reserves to pay off accident claims against their vehicles.

They use the services of Transit Management Corp. of New York, which runs an around-the-clock national claim bureau for a number of fleet operators who have similar self-insurance plans.

"We save about 25 per cent on losses even though we make higher payments than an insurance company would," said Econocar President James Crowley and Ed McGhetigan, president of Transit Management.

When Westinghouse bought Econocar about a year ago, its management was so impressed by the success of the rental firm's self-insurance system for its 7,000 cars, that Westinghouse promptly adopted the plan for its own fleet of cars and trucks.

Insurance Rates High
Where do the savings come from?

"In the first place," said Crowley, "insurance company rates for auto rental firms are high—as much as 130 per cent a year on the company's retrospective loss experience. We figured we had to be able to beat that cost ourselves."

McGhetigan pointed out that this means self insurance savings can be realized with certainty only by fleet owners, the nature of whose business calls for a fairly high accident frequency. Fleet owners whose business permits very high safety records, he said, will do better to stick to the insurance companies because they can get much lower rates.

But Crowley said self-insurance leads to big savings in downtime of vehicles. Econocar and Westinghouse repair their own damaged vehicles and get them back to earning money without the time-consuming process of insurance company adjustment.

"For example," said McGhetigan, "some insurance companies insist on having a police report before they'll settle. It normally takes six weeks to get a police report. We fix responsibility immediately and if our driver or customer was at fault we try to settle the claim fairly and quickly. That heads off expensive lawsuits. Most auto accident claims that end up in court do so because the claimants get burned up at the long delays they experience in trying to settle the claim directly with the insurance companies."

Receive Safety Tips
Crowley said the Transit Management saved money in another way.

"By processing our accident claims ourselves we learn a lot about better maintenance of our cars. Westinghouse and other self-insured fleet operators get valuable tips on their daily safety procedures," he said.

"Lastly," said Crowley, "we save money by investing our claim reserve funds the same way an insurance company would, but we get the interest on the money instead of an insurance company."

Transit Management does a business of about $16 million a year. It also has the Olin auto rental system in New York City and a number of fleet owners. Any driver or rental customer of one of Transit Management's clients who is involved in an accident calls a toll-free number at the company's around-the-clock bureau and the claim adjustment machinery goes into action.

Westinghouse has a reinsurance policy to pay off claims of more than $50,000 but through Transit Management they settle and pay more than 99 per cent of their claims themselves.

IRS Reports On Activities Of Racketeers

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 85 per cent of the nation's racketeers are engaged in legitimate business activities, with restaurants, bars and taverns heading the list, the Internal Revenue Service says.

In its 1971 annual report, the IRS said today it has information that about 2,000 persons are considered major racketeers in the United States.

Officials provided few details, but said there are 217 restaurants, bars and taverns in which racketeers are engaged.

This figure includes both major and minor racketeers, the IRS said, and "there could be two or more racketeers in one restaurant." The report did not define "major" and "minor" racketeers.

The IRS listed 186 businesses in the real estate and insurance field in which racketeers are engaged. Other major fields and the number of businesses involved:

Legalized gambling, including casinos and race tracks, 117; finance, including banking and stocks, 88; the professions, including lawyers, accountants and doctors, 82;

Entertainment and recreation, 77; construction, 71; hotels and motels, 68; manufacturing, 64; food sales, 62; automobile sales and services, 56; trucking and transportation, 52; and liquor sales, 50.

The final listing was federal, state and local government employment, 51. There was no explanation of whether this represented 51 individuals or 51 governmental bodies in which racketeers are engaged.

Predicted Food Price Rise Revised Upward

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Grocery prices may climb as much as 4 per cent this year, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday, revising upward an earlier forecast. A congressman charged the administration has been ineffective in dealing with "skyrocketing" food prices.

The Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service earlier had estimated the grocery price jump this year would be from 2 to 3.5 per cent.

Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., said he wanted a "full-scale investigation" of food prices by the Cost of Living Council. He contended there had been "ineffective policing" by the Price Commission. He said there were "increasing loopholes in price regulation."

The new predicted increase would surpass the 2.5 per cent annual guideline for price increases laid down by the Price Commission. However, it was pointed out that raw agricultural products are exempt from economic controls. Retailers are permitted under Phase II to pass along any added costs they incur.

The Economic Research Service also estimated that farm income perhaps would hit $17.7 billion in 1972. This would be a record and would compare to $15.7 billion in 1971. The previous record of $17.1 billion was set in 1947.

was set in 1947.

A three-day White House conference on business in 1990 ended Wednesday. Sen. Fred H. Harris, D-Okla., charged it had been a "festival of self-congratulation" for big business.

Harris contended that leaders of big labor unions and gadflies such as consumer advocate Ralph Nader and Federal Communications Commission member Nicholas Johnson purposely had been excluded from the conference.

About 1,500 delegates participated in the conference. Most of them were corporation executives.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans disputed Harris' criticism, saying "all points of view were well represented" at the conference. Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said that United Auto Workers Vice President Pat Greenhouse and Einar Mohn, director of the Western Conference of Teamsters, were participants.

POT COMPONENT MAY BE USEFUL IN HEART CASES

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Preliminary research indicates that a component of marijuana may be useful in treating heart patients, a University of Pittsburgh pharmacologist said today.

Dr. M. I. Oskoui, associate professor of pharmacology, induced artificial heart irregularities in 40 cats and rabbits by the use of drugs.

He found that subsequent injections of the component of marijuana provided "significant protection" in delaying and preventing heart irregularities. The injections of tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), the marijuana component, also brought on a decrease in sexual interest and a general disorientation among laboratory animals, Oskoui reported.

In Hollywood

EDITOR'S NOTE — What are the movies going to be like that you'll see this year? The following first of two articles takes a look at the year ahead and what is in store.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The pictures I'm making will have only one message: entertainment."

That statement from Paramount production chief Robert Evans reflects the thinking of the men who have planned America's movies for 1972. The accent is on adventure, comedy, and romance, with a degree of sex and violence though perhaps not as much as in 1971. Says a veteran film observer: "Except for a picture like 'Carnal Knowledge,' which concerned sexual attitudes, explicit sex isn't necessary in films today. In fact, it can hurt a film by giving it an R or X rating and thus limiting the audience. 'Violence may be on the downswing, too. Not yet, but soon. It should happen as the public reacts to the excessive brutality of current films like 'Straw Dogs' and 'A Clockwork Orange.'"

A survey of the 1972 product indicates other trends:
1. More films aimed at the black filmgoers market. With such 1971 hits as "Shaft" and "Sweet Sweetback," the film industry realized the value of appealing directly to the big-city Negro audience. The new year will bring a sequel to "Shaft" called "The Big Bamboo." Also a replay of the Godfrey Cambridge-Raymond St. Jacques teaming in "Cotton Comes to Harlem." The new one: "Come Back, Charleston Blue."

There will be a black Western, "Buck and the Preacher," starring Harry Belafonte and Sidney Poitier, who also directed. Also a frontier story, "Man and Boy," with Bill Cosby. And even a Negro horror film, "Blacula."

2. More no-name casts. The success of "Summer of '42" and "Willard" further impressed producers that big names are not necessary in today's market. That doesn't mean that stars will be hitting the unemployment lines. The 1972 product will feature such in-demand names as John Wayne, Steve McQueen, Clint Eastwood, Paul Newman, Barbara Streisand and Robert Redford.

3. A paucity of musicals. Only two major musicals, "1776" and "Cabaret," (Liza Minnelli, Joel Gray) are ready for 1972. Another is filming—"Man of La Mancha," starring Peter O'Toole and Sophia Loren. "Unfortunately, musicals are too expensive," explains Gordon Stulberg, president of 20th Century-Fox. "There is also a big problem in the foreign market; a lot of countries simply don't like musicals. Foreign sales amount to half our income, so a musical is a heavy risk."

4. Absence of the spectacle. From "Birth of a Nation" to "Nicholas and Alexandra," the "big" picture has been a movie staple. Not this year. The usual kind of spectacle—Biblical epic, war pageant, conquest of the frontier—will be virtually nonexistent.

"The spectacle is gone," says Stulberg. "No company can afford to spend many millions on a single picture any more. There will be no more spectacles—unless the film economy changes by adding new markets."

Westerns will continue, of course. But they will be small Westerns, rather than those with huge cattle drives and covered wagon panoramas.

5. Fewer films dealing with today's problems. The "Easy Rider" success syndrome produced a spate of films dealing with dope, youth rebellion, antiwar protest and other contemporary issues. Millions were lost on such efforts. Most producers are following Robert Evans' "no message" policy.

6. Accent on action-adventure. The film business continues to play follow the leader. Such big moneymakers as "Diamonds Are Forever" and "The French Connection" point the way to more such capers.

Among the spy-and-caper films for 1972: Alfred Hitchcock's "Frenzy"; "The Salzburg Connection"; "Hickey and Boggs," (Bill Cosby, Robert Culp).

No-name casts, few musicals, no spectacles—does that make it sound like a drab year at the nation's theaters? Not necessarily. In times of stress, film makers often try harder. Many an unheralded gem may be awaiting release in 1972.

As to the more heralded films here are some that hold promise:

"The Godfather." The best-seller about the Mafia has a ready audience, and there is great expectation about Marlon Brando's performance in the title role.

"What's Up, Doc?" starring Miss Streisand and Ryan O'Neal. The film world will be waiting to see how director Peter Bogdanovich fares in his first film after "The Last Picture Show."

"Portnoy's Complaint." The answer will soon be known to "How on earth can they make a movie out of THAT book?"
Next: Movies and profits.

Nixon

A newsman's protest that the news conference should be continued past the traditional hour of "Thank you, Mr. President," at the 30-minute mark, was asked about the "Anderson papers"—secret documents published by columnist Jack Anderson quoting from minutes of top-level administration policy conferences on the India-Pakistan war.

Nixon was asked if there was a question of credibility inasmuch as the papers quoted aide Henry A. Kissinger as saying Nixon wanted to "tilt" in favor of Pakistan at almost the same time that Kissinger was telling reporters the United States was neutral.

The President, dipping into his memory, said he had supported every aid-to-India program while he was a public official and felt Asia's largest non-Communist country should have every chance to succeed. "As far as I being anti-Indian was concerned," he said, "I was anti-war."

He added that he and Atty. Gen. John Mitchell did not feel they had enough evidence to take to court at this point. But he said that if such evidence is forthcoming, he will opt for prosecution.

In answer to another question, Nixon said "there will be no increases in taxes this year" because, even if he proposed one, Congress couldn't digest it in view of "as much as it has on its plate."

However, he noted he promised in his State of the Union address to seek a way to relieve householders of property taxes, which he described as "the most regressive tax" and, in the minds of some courts, unconstitutional.

Without referring to widespread reports that he plans to propose a value-added tax—a type of national sales tax that critics view as placing the greatest burden on the poor, Nixon said, "We are not going to replace one regressive tax with another."

President Nguyen Van Thieu declared Thursday night that South Vietnam will make no further peace concessions despite Secretary of State William P. Rogers' assertions of flexibility in the allied position.

Thieu confirmed a rift between Saigon and President Nixon's administration over the latest allied peace plan. He sharply criticized Rogers, saying that if the secretary meant what he said, "it is a serious violation of Vietnamese sovereignty."

"I will talk with Mr. Nixon about it," Thieu said in a television interview with five Vietnamese newsmen.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment but Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary said: "There's no disagreement between this government and the government of South Vietnam."

While saying nothing about a future Nixon-Thieu meeting, Warren emphasized the United States would not indulge in "concomitance with Hanoi at the expense of the people of South Vietnam."

Under the allied eight-point peace plan, new elections would follow a cease-fire and Thieu would resign a month before the vote, in which all political factions including the Viet Cong could participate.

Rogers told a Washington news conference Feb. 3 that the United States was flexible on the composition of a caretaker government, on the length of time that Thieu would resign before the election and on other unresolved questions.

"Everybody knows that the proposal is a joint peace plan of the United States and South Vietnam," Thieu declared. "When we said I will resign one month prior to the new election, we meant it."

A POINTED FIND

READING, England (AP) — A 2,000-year-old Celtic sword found by a skin diver in the river Thames, has been described by a museum expert in Berkshire as "a very exciting discovery." The three-foot-long sword "is exceptionally beautiful and was probably owned by an aristocratic Celtic warrior," said an official at Reading Museum.

Two enemy rockets crashed into the provincial capital of Quang Ngai, 75 miles south of Da Nang, killing two civilians and wounding one.

In coastal Binh Dinh Province, Viet Cong troops slipped into three settlement camps for war refugees and burned down 75 per cent of the homes. A militiaman was wounded. Spokesmen reported no fighting there, indicating the militia defenders and civilian inhabitants had fled.

Infantrymen of South Vietnam's 22nd Division were subjected to four separate shellings by enemy gunners in Central Binh Dinh Province. One was followed by a ground probe that cost the enemy seven dead, the South Vietnamese reported.

Government casualties were reported as three killed and eight wounded. Infantrymen who pursued the attackers called in air strikes on the fleeing enemy.

Informants in the 2nd military region headquarters at Pleiku said South Vietnamese helicopter reinforcements were sent from Kontum Province to Binh Dinh because of increased fighting on the coastal plain.

The U.S. Command announced two Americans were killed in action last week and 31 were wounded. South Vietnamese headquarters listed killed and 718 wounded. There were seven U.S. deaths from nonhostile causes.

The death tolls were somewhat lower than the previous week, but this week's casualty figures are expected to be far higher as a result of increased action.

The weekly casualty communiqué also reported 1,305 enemy killed last week. Allied commanders now have reported these total casualties for the war:

morning. With the addition of a third aircraft carrier to the 7th Fleet task force in the Gulf of Tonkin, about 350 fighter-bombers are now operating in the Indochina theater. There is speculation that a fourth carrier, the Kitty Hawk might return to Vietnam.

Administration sources in Washington also reported about 40 B52 bombers are being deployed to Guam to reinforce more than 40 Stratofortresses stationed in Thailand.

Some observers felt the aircraft moves demonstrated Nixon's lack of confidence in the Vietnamese ability to protect departing U.S. soldiers, although the administration has consistently claimed that Vietnamization is successful.

The show of aerial strength also raises the possibility of massive retaliation against North Vietnam should Hanoi launch an all-out offensive.

The enemy continued its numerous attacks across Vietnam. So far military spokesmen have hesitated to call the attacks an offensive, although they concede a high point of activity has been under way for the past three days.

Saigon headquarters reported 41 enemy attacks during the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. Thursday, resulting in at least 60 government soldiers killed and 161 wounded. The enemy toll was put at 204 dead.

Some of the fiercest fighting raged 20 to 35 miles south of Da Nang, where enemy troops attacked militia outposts defending the district towns of Duy Xuyen, Que Son and Hiep Duc.

Spokesmen said 21 enemy and 13 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 27 government soldiers were wounded. More than 100 satchel charges used by sappers were found on the battlefield.

Week-Long Blizzard Kills Many Iranians

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Thousands of Iranian villagers were unaccounted for Thursday after a week-long blizzard that dumped 10 to 26 feet of snow in outlying areas after four years of drought.

Newspapers put the figure of missing persons at 6,000. Among them is a U.S. female college student and two male companions who went mountain climbing near Tehran on Monday.

A five-man mountain team that set out to search for them Tuesday also has vanished. Officials said the mountain is covered with 38 inches of snow.

Neither the U.S. Embassy nor Aryamehr University in Tehran would identify the American student.

The storm laid a deep blanket of snow across northwestern, central and southern Iran. The government began taking precautions for possible heavy flooding that could come with a thaw.

In southern Iran, at least 4,000 villagers from the Ardekan area are reported trapped or buried beneath 26 feet of snow.

According to the newspaper Ettelaat, the villages of Kakkan and Kumar near Ardekan are among those buried, and searchers have not found any signs of their inhabitants.

The paper said the region is cut off completely as far as road, cable and telephone communications are concerned.

Premier Amir Abbas Hoveida, coordinating searchers from his downtown office, appealed to civil and military authorities in the stricken northwestern regions to do all they can to rescue the thousands of people trapped and buried in the snow.

The first day of sunshine in a week gave search teams the opportunity to reach some of the trapped trains, snowbound motor vehicles and buried villages.

One team reached the tiny village of Shekhar near the Turkish border and saw no sign of its 100 inhabitants. The team found 18 bodies buried in the snow. The village is at the foot of the rugged Zagros Mountain range.

Temperatures dipped to 13 degrees below zero in Hamadan and Meshab, freezing water pipes and causing a water shortage.

The flu is reported spreading in snowbound villages. Five members of one family in Pirmeloh village near Asadabad, south of Tehran, are reported dead of the flu and nearly all other villagers are said to be down with it.

Waste Turned Into Oil, Metals, Glass, Charcoal

LA VERNE, Calif. (UPI)—An oil company Thursday unveiled a plant that turns garbage and trash into oil, metals, glass and charcoal.

The byproducts of trash can be sold and the money used to pay for some of the cost of collecting America's millions of tons of waste, the company said.

With officials from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and authorities in San Diego County looking on, Occidental Petroleum Corp. demonstrated a four-story high pilot plant that the company said could process four tons of waste a day.

A research engineer vacuumed some trash into a pipe, and oil gushed out the other end.

Potentially Excellent "It is potentially an excellent system, particularly in areas where power plants are designed for oil or gas fuels," said Steve Levy, an EPA official. "It's the only way to go," was the reaction from Case Houson, director of the San Diego County Department of Sanitation and Flood Control.

According to researchers at Occidental's Garrett Research and Development Co. subsidiary, the plant will produce a 42-gallon barrel of low sulphur content synthetic fuel oil from each ton of organic waste, such as food garbage. The fuel oil is worth $2.50 to $4 a barrel.

The pilot plant has had technical problems with the tricky process however, and so far has produced only 15 gallons of usable oil. And the end product oil is dirty and must be filtered, it was reported.

Supervisors To Decide San Diego County supervisors will consider Feb. 9 whether to build a 50-ton-per-day demonstration plant using the Occidental process. The $3 million cost of such a plant, the company hopes, would come from a $2 million grant from the EPA and $1 million from San Diego.

San Diego currently spends $11.25 a ton to get rid of its trash, according to Dr. Donald E. Garrett, Occidental's executive vice president for research and development. More than one third of that expense could be recovered from the sale of material produced by a reclamation plant, he said.

If all the garbage and waste in the United States could be fed through such a plant, the oil produced would fill half the U.S. energy requirement of 1980, company spokesmen said. The plant can be fueled by itself, by the gas, charcoal and other combustible products it produces, which can run electrical generators, spokesmen said.

PILOT'S FAULT

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Private pilot George M. Hattings' plane hit a power line and he made an emergency landing, so he sued the Electricity Supply Commission for damages. The court rejected his claim and awarded the commission $8,038 for damage to the power line.

Cancer Film Shown Club

cures. Brochures were available to all club members.

Nut Cream Cake Is Old Time Delight

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
If you like old-fashioned nut cake you are sure to enjoy the following recipe. It comes from Pennsylvania-Dutch country and was originally made with black walnuts. But because black walnuts are scarce we tried the recipe with regular walnuts and found it absolutely delicious.

This cake is a variation of the old-time 1, 2, 3, 4 or Measure Cake. It differs from that cake because cake flour is used instead of all-purpose flour, heavy cream is called for instead of milk, nuts are added and salt is omitted.

WALNUT CREAM CAKE
3 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs
1 container (8 ounces) heavy cream
1 cup finely chopped black or regular walnuts

Line the bottom of a 10-inch aluminum angelfood cake pan with wax paper; grease paper. On another sheet of wax paper sift together the cake flour and baking powder; return to sifter. (No salt is called for in this recipe.)

In a large mixing bowl cream butter, sugar and vanilla. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Sift in mixture in 4 additions, alternately adding cream, and fold in as you do so, until batter is smooth each time; begin and end with dry ingredients. Fold in nuts. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean-1 1/4 hours.

Place cake in pan on a wire rack to cool. With a small metal spatula loosen edges. Turn out on wire rack.

Cake is delicious served plain, but if you prefer you may spread the top with a thin butter-cream frosting letting it drip down the sides.

Store in a tightly covered tin box.

BATTLES BOTTLES
MONTREAL (AP) - Three young Montrealers are battling pollution by scrounging through refuse from bars and apartment blocks for bottles that can be recycled and sold in their craft shop. The trio turns the bottles into goblets, jardinières, candle holders, lamps, jewelry and punch bowl sets.

IPC Announces Plans For New Nuclear Plant

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Power Co. announced Thursday plans to construct an 800,000-kilowatt nuclear fueled electric power plant on a 17,000-acre site in Clinton.

Wendell J. Kelley, president of the company, said the firm has acquired 7,500 acres and hopes to put the plant into operation by 1980.

He said uncertainty about state and federal pollution-control requirements have made it financially impractical to construct any more coal-burning plants in the state.

He said quotations are now being accepted on nuclear steam generators.

The company has not obtained approval for the plant or a license to operate it, he added.

Education Fund Hike May Increase Taxes

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Republican officials said Thursday that a proposed increase of $207 million in Illinois funds to support public education would require higher state taxes.

But Michael J. Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, a Democrat, said he is confident his proposed 1972-73 school-aud budget would require no tax increase.

Bakalis announced his budget at a news conference in Chicago, saying it was the first step in a three-year plan to shift the burden of public-school financing from local to state government.

"I am confident that, through the use of these unspent funds and with the assistance of Gov. (Richard B.) Ogilvie, who has promised to reduce priorities in his own budget to free more money for education, my proposed 1972-73 school budget can be implemented without any new taxes," Bakalis said.

Within hours, Ogilvie's budget director, John W. McCarter, and Rep. Henry J. Hyde, House majority leader, held separate news conferences. Both said an increase in state aid to education is impossible without an increase in state taxes.

"To pretend otherwise is to kid the public," Hyde said.

Hyde and McCarter tied the educational financing problem with the welfare problem.

McCarter said in Springfield: "You can't do everything. The first place we have to put money is in welfare ... Our first business is the support of the basic needs of persons."

Hyde said:

"The only hope for a major increase in state aid to education without a tax increase is a solution of the welfare problem. And I have seen no evidence of any desire on the part of the Democratic leadership to come to grips with that problem."

Bakalis said, if approved, Chicago schools would receive about $50 million of the proposed increase and the rest would go to downstate areas, including about 30 rural counties.

He said the proposal asks $940,534,000, compared with last year's $736,400,000, an increase of the state level of support from 33 to 42 per cent.

In succeeding years, Bakalis said, he is hopeful the state support level will be raised to 46 per cent and to "a minimum of 50 per cent."

He said that there will be a $4 million carryover in unspent funds appropriated for education this year that could be directed to his proposed budget.

He added:

"Through a stern discipline toward paring away the frills that exist in many state agencies, we can spend more for education without new taxes, and I'm confident as well the whole process will be felt in time at the local level through a relief on property taxes."

The lieutenant governor also said: "No director or acting director has the power to serve as a one-man court to reverse an order of the judiciary."

In a news conference, McCarter said, "We do not process his office's vouchers and if he chooses to do that, that's his prerogative."

McCarter denied he was acting as a one-man court, and said the figure he ordered was to cover current payouts from the retirement system.

Budget Procedures Pondered By Council

By John B. Martin

Thursday night's special session of the city council was handled informally in the commission room at city hall and did cover budget and appropriation problems.

Twelve of the 14 aldermen were present for the session as well as the mayor and city attorney. Absent were Aldermen Tomlovich and Fernandes.

Mayor Dan F. Lahey said it was his opinion that the meeting should be open to the press but left it to the aldermen to decide. The motion and second was made but no formal vote was taken on the matter. The meeting was open to the public.

As background for the meeting, the appropriation ordinance has received first reading and is scheduled for second and final reading next Monday. That ordinance is the maximum which can be spent in all areas of city government. As such, most emergencies likely to take place are included. The total is far greater than anticipated income, but the items cannot be expended without first having the money.

For the first time, the city may also have a budget for each department with the figures listed considerably below those listed in the appropriation ordinance. The budget has been proposed as that amount which each department expects to get by on for the year.

This figure could change. The method of change is to first gain approval of the particular committee involved; second, gain approval of the finance committee. There is no law governing changing those figures in the budget, but those figures are more closely allied with income anticipated.

Mayor Dan F. Lahey cited several examples of budget figures which might have to be changed during the year in case it becomes necessary and expressed disagreement that he would have to have the time lag to go through the committees involved and possibly the council. One suggestion was made at last Monday's meeting to include council approval as well as the finance committee.

Mayor Lahey said if it became necessary to go through the council for every budget change we might need, most people in the community who don't know about budgets and appropriations will "wonder what in the hell we are doing."

Alderman Don Votsmier, chairman of the finance committee, explained that there is no policy change. That, in fact, the figures in the budget and appropriations too are the same figures proposed by every committee chairman. Votsmier said he did not, nor did his committee, "alter any of the figures presented either up or down."

He said the budget would allow a realistic figure of the costs of the city.

At a stormy hearing, two members of the body also accused Democratic state senators of holding up the board's $100,000 1972 appropriation out of partisan opposition to its political alignment.

"I don't believe the sincerity of these points," Ann Miller of Hillsdale, a board member told a select Senate committee on funding the board. "I believe they were created as part of a deliberate delay. Perhaps you have a right to be dissatisfied, but that's too bad."

Under the Constitution, only four of the nine members of the board may be from the same political party. Mrs. Miller, who proclaims herself a Democrat, has been accused of being a fifth Republican.

Sen. John L. Knuppel, D-Petersburg, committee chairman, challenged Mrs. Miller's standing as a Democrat, saying she had voted in three Republican primary elections between 1960 and 1970 and only one such Democratic contest.

"I resent being called a liar," Mrs. Miller said. "I am a Democrat, but they don't like the kind of Democrat I am."

Chairman Richard T. Dunn of Bloomington and Frank Greenberg of Chicago, another board member, told Knuppel and other Democratic senators that the legislature has the power of the purse over the board but no right to dictate its internal policies.

At one point, Knuppel asked Dunn if the legislature could hold up the appropriation of the board if it considered the organization to be in violation of a constitutional requirement that provides for a majority of members who are not lawyers. Dunn said this might be a proper course.

"I think it's the same with politics," Knuppel replied. "I think it's the same whether you're talking about lawyers, judges or whatever ..."

"That's politics; that's different," Dunn interjected.

Throughout the four hours of testimony, Knuppel and other Democratic members, Sens. Robert McCarthy of Decatur and Thomas Hynes of Chicago, reiterated that questions beside the political composition of the board also were involved in the hearing.

They listed legislative control over board activities and possible conflict of interest in cases in which lawyer members of the board might practice before judges under investigation.

Republican committee members, Sens. Everett Laughlin of Freeport and John Gilbert of Carbondale, as well as Mrs. Miller and Greenberg, ridiculed these points as trivial.

The hearing ended without consideration of an amendment to the funding bill offered by the absent assistant Republican leader of the upper chamber, Sen. Robert Coulson of Waukegan.

Although no formal action was taken, Knuppel said afterward he believes "some kind of accommodation is still possible."
